The Aegis is a book of memories. To us it seems that no recollections are more worthy of preservation than those of the joyous days of Carnival; into this volume then we have tried to put something of the gaiety and spontaneous good-fellowship which Carnival calls forth. We shall have succeeded if we recall for you this and other happy episodes of your Dartmouth life.

DEDICATION

THE most distinctively Dartmouth of all Dartmouth traditions; the embodiment of Dartmouth's out-of-door spirit; the symbol of Dartmouth to the outside world; such is our Winter Carnival. This year marks the twenty-fifth celebration of Carnival—its silver anniversary. It is therefore fitting that this sixty-third volume of the Aegis be dedicated to Carnival as personified by the Queen of the Snows.

• The twenty-fifth anniversary of the Dartmouth Winter Carnival demanded something unusually good and singular to mark the importance and significance of one of the college's finest traditions. To produce such a Carnival not only required the best efforts of the Committee, Cabin and Trail, and the Outing Club, but also the help of other student organizations, faculty, and interested individuals. The result was a group that worked together with unprecedented smoothness, turning out work almost magically in an effort to make this Carnival the biggest and best in the twenty-five years of its history.

As a background for the entire Carnival the Norse theme was chosen, and it was "to the spirit of adventure" of the sturdy Norsemen and to their development of skiing that the Carnival was dedicated. And in particular it was Wodin upon whom we called, for he was the Norse God of Winter, and his smile or his frown meant success or failure to all our efforts. Thus it was Wodin who ruled over Carnival, from his mighty seat in the middle of the campus, a majestic figure, constantly attended by his four gnomes and continually smiling approval of the work of the Carnival Committee.

ANNIVERSARY CARNIVAL

V. HUBE

With the natural possibilities afforded by this year being not only the twenty-fifth anniversary but also the beginning of a new ski era in this part of the country, the work progressed with the hope and expectation of entertaining the largest number of guests ever, and it was with great satisfaction that we learned that over a thousand fair visitors had arrived as guests of the men of Dartmouth. And with their arrival began one of those hectic, concentrated, never - to - be - forgotten Dartmouth Carnivals.

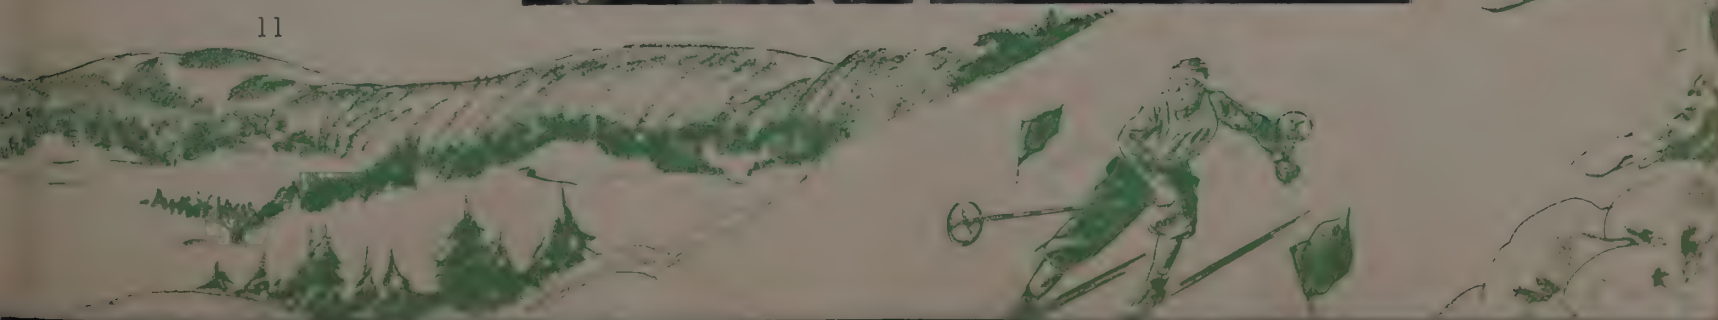

The opening event of the winter sports' program was the fifteen kilometer cross country race and, despite the fact that a smaller number of men had been entered than in the previous year, it was easily seen that the field was of a higher caliber. It was, however, a Dartmouth man who turned in the best time, when Dick Durance brought home the first win for the Winter Sports team. Meanwhile, on Occum Pond the four-forty and two mile skating races were being held, and again the Big Green left the pack behind as Pug Goldthwaite unofficially broke the world's record in the four-forty and then coasted home to an easy victory in the two mile. A valiant but fruitless attempt to take the measure of Yale's powerful swimming team concluded the afternoon events.

Old Wodin must have appreciated the honors that were heaped on him for he favored us with the most ideal conditions for the presentation of "Jottunheimer Eiskorneval"; no doubt the reason was that Jottunheim was his old home town. The scene was laid in the home of the Norse Gods and at the time that they were called in to choose a King and to receive the Earth Maiden as Queen. The Gods arrived, one by one, each doing his best to show that he was the most brilliant skier, for it was upon that basis that the new King was to be chosen. Two were by far outstanding, and they were immediately dispatched to the top of the hill to try again to excel each other. A flash of a bomb and the first one was off, gracefully descending the hill with "barrel-rolls," jump turns, and coming to a stop with a beautiful "tempo." And now the second. A slow start; a "reuel-roll" which reversed his direction; two jump turns, and then to climax it all, a somersault which stunned the audience. There could be no doubt as to the choice of King. He was conducted to his throne and crowned King of the Silver Anniversary Winter Carnival.

Entertainment was demanded for the enjoyment of the King, and there soon came upon the scene a peculiar specie of wild life. It was yellow and blue in color and seemed to be of the general appearance of a moose. The disconcerting part of its anatomy was the fact that skates appeared in place of hoofs, but their value was never doubted after seeing the "grace and ease" with which this animal performed. And then came the figure skater, the world's champion, Miss Evelyn Chandler, one of the finest of acrobatic skaters. Her performance was amazing, her jumps and spins were executed with great brilliancy, and the audience clamored for encore after encore.

The Queen! She had been sent from the Earth to propitiate the gods of Winter who had descended upon a small Iceland village and given vent to their wrath. The snow was up to the chimneys; a powerful gale was blowing; and the thermometer read one hundred below. The passing of the Earth Maiden into the custody of the Gods of Jottunheim was the signal for rejoicing on the part both of the people of the village and of the Gods themselves, for the little village was immediately returned to its normal condition, and the Gods were about to receive their new Queen of the Snows. Her arrival was announced by a blare of trumpets and soon she could be seen being carried in the dog team across the snow and ice, up to the stairway leading to the throne of the Queen. She alighted and was led to her place, and there was crowned: Miss Pauline Webster, Queen of the Silver Anniversary Winter Carnival.

Fireworks were set off in celebration, and after besieging the Queen to catch an early glimpse, the crowd gradually made off for the production of the Players, the next event on the program. "The Pirates of Penzance" was an outstanding performance, and more than one came out humming the tunes of this Gilbert and Sullivan operetta. A change from ski-boots to dress shoes and ski suits to evening dress transferred the students and their guests from the environment of the rugged out-of-doors to that of the pleasant formality of the dance floor, and with this ended the first day's activities.

The activities of the second day began very early, and because of this fact, it was easy to pick out the real lovers of skiing, for the downhill and slalom to the real enthusiast mean something thrilling in sheer speed and something of beauty in execution of control. The slalom course was again laid on the steep face of Balch Hill, and the first entrant had hardly finished before the largest crowd ever to witness such an event began to gather. Again a Dartmouth man gained first place, for Ted Hunter, with unusual speed and control, descended the entire course without a fall. The downhill immediately followed, and in this Dick Durrance's time was again the fastest, thus crediting the freshman star with his second win. The hockey game did not turn out so fortunately for the Indian, as Harvard administered a 6-2 defeat.

The first intercollegiate ski-joring race was held in the afternoon with several teams entered, and proved to be an excellent innovation. The Dartmouth ski-joring team won first place. This was followed by the intercollegiate and invitation ski-jumping tournament at the big jump. The field was made up of the best college jumpers, but it was two Dartmouth men that proved best. The winner was Bem Woods, whose form, despite the fact that both of his jumps were less in distance than those of his teammate Durrance, was sufficiently better to enable him to capture first place. Dick Durrance's second place in the jumping, together with his first in the cross country, gave him a first in the combined event. The last event of the Carnival meet was the ski relay, and Dartmouth entered the event leading the rest of the entrants in the number of points gathered up to that time. But Wodin, perhaps angry because of his waning popularity now that the land of Jottunheim was a thing of the past, scowled heavily. One of the men on the relay team, unfortunately not familiar with his section of the terrain, lost the course in the growing darkness and was disqualified. Due to the nature of the new scoring system this meant the loss of the meet and a third place for the Dartmouth team. New Hampshire, which had finished closely behind Dartmouth in most events, placed first, and second went to McGill. When it came to the individual honors, however, it was the Dartmouth team that carried off the majority of the medals. There could be no doubt as to the superiority of Otto Schniebs' ski team.

- The Dartmouth College Council on Student Organizations has the responsibility of regulating and supervising the non-athletic activities of the student body. It in turn is regulated by a constitution which is approved by the Faculty, the Alumni Council, and Palaeopitus. The membership of the Council consists of the three members of the Faculty Committee on Student Organizations, an alumnus selected annually by the Alumni Council, and three undergraduates selected each year by the Council from the organizations under its control. Such things as the Glee Club, the Instrumental Club, the Players, the Band, the Forensic Union, and ushering for College functions come under its management.

- The purpose of the Council is to promote responsibility, self-reliance, and initiative in so far as the financial security and the interest of the College permit. Each organization has its own budget under which it operates and is practically independent in its own field, except as its specific plans are subject to the approval of the Council. Such approval is seldom withheld. The Council also trains and appoints student managers by means of an annual competition. Following the selection of suitable candidates, each man works in turn for the various organizations and so gains considerable experience in the routine duties of the activities. In April of the Sophomore year assistant managers of the organizations, and the head usher, are appointed from those competing. Three of the assistant managers become members of the Green Key. In May of the Junior year the assistant managers become managers of their respective organizations. One of the managers and one of the members of the various organizations under the Council are then elected to Palaeopitus. In its annual June meeting the Council selects three of the managers for its membership for the next year.

- The efficiency and effectiveness of non-athletic activities has developed through the aid and cooperation of the Council, which appoints directors of the various organizations and makes use of the reserve fund, set aside from surpluses, to purchase essential equipment not provided by the current budgets. It is also responsible for the trips of non-athletic organizations representing the College and controls the use of the name "Dartmouth."

1934 FOOTBALL SEASON

• The 1934 season marked the début of Coach Blaik and his new football régime. He succeeded in instilling into this campus a spirit that has been seriously lacking the last few years. The second annual spring football practice brought out large groups of spectators interested in the new team and its possibilities, and this spirit remained throughout the season. Rallies were enthusiastically spontaneous, and a much greater proportion of the student body looked upon its team as one that was capable of adequately representing the college. "New formations, even new names for the backs, have served to call attention to football's changed status at Hanover, and the new uniforms of silver satin pants, green jerseys, and green and silver helmets, have the local rooters gasping with admiration." And well they might; even though the Big Green was not the champion of the East, yet it might well claim the title of the "best-dressed football team." As Allison Danzig put it in the New York Times, "after three years of depression the guttural wah-hoo-wah of the Dartmouth Indians echoes again in full battle cry in the salubrious foothills of the White Mountains."

• In spite of the fact that large losses in the backfield were sustained by graduation, the prospects seemed bright at the beginning of the season; Coach Blaik let it be known that he considered all the men on the squad equal, and that every player, whatever his reputation, would have to prove his worth. The places of such men as Stangle, Hedges, Powers, and Morton in the backfield, and Glazer and Michelet in the line were hard to fill, but the veterans from the previous campaign, as well as the prospects from the former year's freshman team, seemed to have the stuff that is necessary to win games. The schedule was less difficult than the killing one that had been played out the season before, and this fact helped to further the optimism that was prevalent among Dartmouth men in every part of the country.

• A large and enthusiastic crowd invaded Hanover for the season's opener, the traditional game with Norwich. Here Coach Blaik's charges faced their first test under fire. Continued rain dampened the field, but not the spirits, and the only thing missing was the parade of the freshmen, Delta Alpha. Dartmouth kicked off to open the game, and after an exchange of punts, showed a sample of its power by putting on a drive of 57 yards for the first touchdown. These were straight power plays; never throughout the contest did the Dartmouth team try a pass, and rarely anything in the least deceptive. But it got there just the same. Hard driving backs and a line that carried out its each and every assignment, were too much for the Cadets. Against this relatively minor opposition, of course plays were bound to work, but nevertheless the cooperation and coordination displayed promised that this team was better grounded in fundamentals and was working more as a unit than those of the last few years.

- The star of this first encounter came in the person of Phil Conti, '37, who continually ripped through the line or around the ends for large gains. The Cadets were bewildered by his speed and clever footwork, and he and his comrades, Chamberlain, Deckert, and Handrahan, demonstrated that the insistence of Coach Blaik and his assistants upon speed and deception, might well bear good fruit.

- The next week-end brought Vermont and the postponed Delta Alpha. The Dartmouth team failed to click in the approved manner in the first half, and was held to one touchdown. But Conti and Company got started in the second half, and proceeded to rip off four more touchdowns to make the final score 32-0. Again the Dartmouth offense kept to the ground, and amassed a total of 23 first downs, covering 387 yards in the process; the first pass of the season was attempted, Rand to Deckert, but it fell incomplete. In striking contrast the visitors gained but ten yards and failed to make a first down. So the Green team went into its contest with Maine as yet untested by any stiff opposition.

- The University of Maine brought to Hanover a much stronger team than had either of the two previous opponents. It held the Green total yardage to almost half that of each of the other games, and besides opened up an attack of its own that might well have resulted in a touchdown, but for Mutt Ray's alertness in intercepting a pass on his own three-yard line. The Green team opened up its aerial attack for the first time, and completed a total of three passes in ten tries. Weakness in this department of the game was glaring, especially in the coverage of Maine's deceptive ends, but the team lived up to its previous promise in all other fields, and the optimism of the Dartmouth supporters seemed to be justified.

- The first intersectional game to be played in Hanover in many a year brought the University of Virginia here on October 20. The first half of this game was probably the worst exhibition of football witnessed in Hanover in the memory of the present college generation. Besides, the officials seemed to take keen delight in handing out penalties, and gave twenty-six of them during the afternoon, mostly in the first half. In spite of this handicap and the determined opposition of the Virginia team, the Dartmouth eleven managed to put over one touchdown to make the score at the half 7-0.

- The second half proved to be as good as the first was bad. Penalties were few and both teams had a chance to show their stuff. And the Green team showed its power by rolling up a total of twenty-one points in the thirty minutes. This display of sheer power was a warning to Harvard and other major opponents, but the same glaring weakness in the air continued; Dartmouth completed not a pass out of ten attempts, while Virginia made three passes for forty-five yards.

• "Beautifully drilled, well conditioned, hard running, the spark that rises to heights when necessary"—thus did Eskie Clark characterize the new Dartmouth team after its contest with Harvard. And the team deserved it. This major victory gave the Hanoverians something to be proud of in the way of a football team. The Green looked like a great team, well oiled and unified, although there were no outstanding stars; every man had his assignment and each carried it out to the best of his ability. And ability was high that day. Some even called that team the best Dartmouth team they ever saw, which probably was not literally true, but it showed that the "Dartmouth constituency that was hoarse as a crow from so many years of singing in the rain" may be hoarse now from another and more satisfying reason.

• As for the scoring, that all took place in the first half. Hagerman's field goal was made possible by Mutt Ray's interception of Jackson's pass on Dartmouth's twenty-five yard line, and his run of a full FORTY-FIVE yards up the field, before Harvard's track stars could grab him. It was then a matter of a few plays, before Dartmouth found its attack stopped on the sixteen-yard line. Whereupon Hagerman proceeded to drop-kick three points. The touchdown came quite suddenly and dramatically. It was nearing the end of the first half; the Harvard goal was a full 80 yards away, and the prospects for any further scoring seemed remote indeed. Two end runs and two line plunges brought the ball about to midfield; time was getting short and Dartmouth took time out to decide what should be done; this took so long that upon coming out of the huddle the players found the ball moved back five yards toward their own goal line. But it was worth it; the next play proved to be a pass by Clark which carried the ball forty-eight yards down the field; it looked as though Nairne was going over for the touchdown, but the desperate Harvard defense finally forced him out of bounds on the five-yard line. The two teams lined up again without a whistle; and that was all that the Big Green team needed; Nairne took the ball, started toward his left, cut back through the line, and went over the goal standing. Hagerman then kicked the extra point as the half ended with the score 10-0.

• During the intermission, the Dartmouth band combined with the Harvard cheering section to provide amusement for the Dartmouth stands and the other spectators. The band had an arrangement of two Harvard songs, "Fair Harvard," the alma mater, and "Hit the Line," which were so interwoven that strains from the two alternated. When the Harvardians first heard their alma mater song, they of course stood with heads uncovered; then the band swung into the strains of "Hit the Line," whereupon all sat down again—but not for long. The Dartmouth band again switched its tune, and brought them to their feet; this went on for several minutes, until finally the whole Stadium began to laugh at the poor weary Harvardians.

• The next game, with Yale, was the usual heartbreaker. More than 50,000 people viewed the game that was supposed to break the jinx that the "team from New Haven" does NOT hold over the Big Green. The smart playing and decisive action that characterized the game the week before was entirely and painfully lacking. Luck and brains seemed to leave at the same time, and when that happens, the jig is up. Quoting Bill Cunningham, "Dartmouth lost through faulty quarterbacking in the last half, after she had finally got off the defensive and knocked Yale apart sufficiently to reach Yale's ten-yard stripe once and the Blue's 13-yard stripe again." But even so, the Green team should have been able to return to Hanover with its first Blue victory; it blocked two of Yale's punts in succession, one by Bennett on the goal line, and the second by Billings in the end zone, and all it could get was a two-point safety. Dartmouth's power began to show itself however in the third period, and it was by the narrowest of margins that two touchdowns were missed. One seventy-yard march was halted on Yale's ten-yard line only because of Rand's fumble and Yale's subsequent seizure of the ball on downs. Another "touchdown march" in the fourth quarter came to grief on the 13-yard line; sweeping end runs had played the big part in this march, but for some unknown reason, when the shadows of the goal posts were reached, these tactics were discarded and line plunges and passes came into use; these did not work, and Yale easily stopped the last real Dartmouth offense to gain a 7-2 victory.

- House party week-end brought a crowd of 8000 to Hanover to watch a listless victory over the University of New Hampshire. Injuries forced many of the regulars out of the game and others found themselves playing in unfamiliar positions. It was indeed lucky that it was not a major opponent in opposition, else the results would, almost certainly, have been disastrous. The running plays failed to click, and it was only by virtue of a long pass, and two long runs of 57 and 37 yards respectively that the Dartmouth team was able to roll up 21 points. At the same time, the opposition was not idle, and succeeded in scoring a touchdown in the last period, and throwing a scare into the Dartmouth stands on several other occasions.

- A quite unexpectedly crushing defeat was handed out by the relatively weak Cornell team on November 17. While the uninspired playing of the last two games gave no real reason for any great optimism, yet it was thought generally on the Hanover campus that its team ought to have enough stuff to gain a win over Cornell, which had failed to bring home a major victory up to that point. But the latter succeeded in bottling up the hitherto powerful Dartmouth running attack, and the Green had to take to an unaccustomed medium, the air. A long pass, Chamberlain to Matzinger, brought about the only Dartmouth touchdown in the second period, and after that, the Dartmouth team did not have a chance to get started again. This game brought the first and only appearance of Captain Jack Hill, who played out the first half before being forced to retire with a bad knee.

• The last game of the season showed the Dartmouth team at its worst and at its best. After being run ragged by the strong Princeton attack in the first half, the Green team came back in the second half to show its opponents how football should be played. Shortly after the opening of the third quarter, the score stood 38-0 in favor of Princeton. But the latter was all done for the afternoon; the Green played its best ball of the season thereafter and pushed the Tiger all over the field; but it had too much of a handicap, and though a real never-say-die spirit helped push over two touchdowns, the game ended with the score 38-13 for the Tiger's victory. Thus ended the first season of a non-Dartmouth coached team. On the whole, it was felt to be fairly successful by the student body.

• The 1934 Aegis, in commenting on the selections of the new coaches made a few statements that still seem to apply to the present situation. "Some day when the present freshman class has discarded its toques for haughty canes a new tradition may have begun, and the fears of today may have been dispersed by these four new figures in Hanover. Some day the team in green will be able to march onto any challenger's field full of the confidence and intelligence that has characterized past Dartmouth teams, yet glorious with the blood that a new strategy has drawn." These words express the thoughts and feelings that the majority of the present undergraduates still harbor; they believe in Coach Blaik and his assistants, and it is only a matter of time before Dartmouth will be a name greatly to be feared on the gridiron.

• The outstanding star of the season was undoubtedly Mutt Ray. This sophomore center seemed always to be in the right place at the right time, and he brought down runners all over the field, being found at the bottom of almost every other pileup. As the Boston Post reported after the Harvard game, he "looks as if he has the possibilities of blooming into the greatest center Dartmouth has ever known." At the end of the season this indeed seemed to be the almost universal opinion.

• Other stars, with the exception of Don Hagerman, who proved that an educated toe may often win games, were for the most part juniors and sophomores; Chamberlain and Conti, the two featherweights, teamed up to show off their speed and deception; Handrahan at fullback, proved himself better than average at this position, seeming to delight in catching punts while turned back to the ball; and Nairne and Kenny showed that they can carry on next year towards placing Dartmouth football at the top of the heap.

• Losses this year include Aieta, Burnkrant, Clark, Deckert, Rand, and Hill in the backfield; and Carpenter, Hagerman, Ritter, Stearns, and Price in the line. There will be several gaps to fill, but the prospects for next year look better than they have in a long, long, time.

• At a meeting of the letterman held on December 7, Donald W. Erion, '36, was elected the captain of the 1936 team. A star last season as a sophomore, he was forced to watch all of this year's games, with the exception of the Virginia contest, from the sidelines, as a result of a shoulder injury received in an early-season scrimmage. But his sparkling play of the previous year, and his promise for next year, made him the choice of his teammates for this honor.

- A novel suggestion was made in the pages of the "Dartmouth" shortly after the close of the season which seemed to bear the natural reaction from the losses to Yale, Cornell, and Princeton. This Vox Pop showed that the Dartmouth teams seem to have the faculty of going along great, or at least in a respectable manner, until they hit the Yale Bowl; then, after a tough struggle, they lose, and with that loss, seems to go the morale; from then on, they are generally an easy mark for any first class team. This writer goes on to suggest, that future schedules be arranged, so that at least a part of the time, the Yale game be made the last one on our schedule; then a loss there, would have no disastrous effects on the season as a whole. This suggestion may be taken for what it is worth, but in the humble opinion of the writer, it seems to be a good idea, either as is, or else to shift the locale of that particular game every second year, perhaps to New York, if Hanover proves to be too small to attract a sufficient crowd.

- Mr. Harold W. Slabaugh, '18, of Akron, Ohio, suggests a slightly different alternative in the Alumni Magazine. "Would it not be possible to sacrifice a few dollars each year and schedule either Harvard, Yale, or Princeton in Hanover on a rotation basis? A Yale game in Hanover! It takes away your breath—and would the boys go back for that along with thousands of others?"

- In conclusion something must be said in regard to the new system of electing cheer-leaders. Fraternity politics or even a hint in this direction have been eliminated by the practice of selecting them through an impartial committee, instead of by the retiring leaders as in the past. As a result, the cheers this year were many times better than has generally been the case in the past. Gradus ad Parnassum in the Alumni Magazine comments that "recognition should also be given to the marked improvement in cheer-leading technique as demonstrated this fall by three juniors, H. M. Huffman, Jr., R. H. Morton, and B. T. Schorer . . . More power to Pat Kaney and the others who will put some spontaneity and pep into cheering and singing."

JUNIOR VARSITY

- The change in the football policy this year brought with it for the first time a junior varsity football team. This team was organized at the beginning of the season under the leadership of Coach Pat Holbrook. Included in its ranks were those players who showed promise of becoming varsity material and who were given a chance to demonstrate what they could do in frequent scrimmages with the varsity itself. This was the main duty of the team; they learned the plays of the major opponents and put them on against the varsity during the week before the game; thus was the varsity able to concentrate entirely on the problem of stopping these plays and polishing up their own offense, without being under the necessity of having half the squad learning the opponent's plays to be demonstrated to the first and second teams. This proved to be a very valuable aid in the coaches' program, and the jayvees deserve much credit towards helping make this past season a more successful one than those of the past few years.

- Besides acting as fodder for the varsity, the junior varsity played one game with Harvard under its own colors, and came out on top of an 18-6 score. The feature of this contest was a run of 103 yards made by Marshall Roper, '37, who took the ball behind his own goal line, and sweeping around the end, dodged and twisted his way through the Crimson defense to end up his jaunt by downing the ball behind the Harvard goal line. Roper also helped in the making of a second touchdown by tossing a pass from the Harvard twenty-yard line to Fred Axelrod, '35, who received the ball on the ten-yard line, and ran it across. The third touchdown came on a line plunge by Lefebvre from the six-yard line.

The starting lineup of this game was as follows:

Ends—Montei and Johnson
Tackles—Ballantyne and Magel
Guards—Bankart and Handley
Center—Whitaker
Quarterback—Lowen
Halfbacks—Axelrod and April
Fullback—Ley

- However, the personnel of the squad was constantly changing so that it is impossible to give a complete list of the squad; some were promoted to the varsity, while others were sent in the other direction.

- The jayvees have demonstrated their value in putting on opponent's plays, and in developing material for the varsity, and seem destined to remain a permanent feature of the football setup.

1934 BASEBALL SEASON

• Jeff Tesreau's full diamond squad reported on March 6, but with a number of veterans resting after basketball and hockey, the real workouts of the squad did not get under way until a week later. Battery candidates, with the exception of the veteran Bob Miller, had been warming up since the middle of February. By the last of March the batting drills and infield practice had become daily fixtures in the indoor cage. Outside of his pitching staff, Coach Tesreau had a full veteran team to call upon Captain Jake Edwards, Smithy O'Brien and Hafey Arthur forming a hard hitting outfield; Buster Snow, leading hitter of the league last year, Frankie Spain, Walt Keady, Phil Conathan and Rollie Morton heading the infield candidates; and Bill Clark, Jim McHugh and Bob Bennett comprising a seasoned receiving corps. Supporting Bob Miller on the pitching staff were the junior hurler Bob Roundey and several sophomores, Joe Jayne, Ted Olsen and Chuck Barnish.

• In two practice games played during the Spring recess, Dartmouth defeated Princeton, 12-6, and Swarthmore, 13-1. A third game with Gettysburg was cancelled on account of rain. In the Princeton encounter, the Indians put on a six-run rally in the eighth inning to break a 6-6 deadlock. The Green batters made 16 hits, Edwards having a perfect day with five safeties in five trips to the plate. Olsen and Jayne divided the hurling duties with Clark and Bennett as catchers. At Swarthmore the next day, Miller and Roundey pitched for Dartmouth and struck out 12 men between them in seven innings. The sluggers, Edwards, Morton and O'Brien, had a field day knocking the opposing pitchers into the showers with hard singles and deep-field doubles.

• In preparing for the Yale game the Green nine opened its southern invasion against Wesleyan at Middletown and pounded out a 14-2 victory. Dartmouth garnered 14 hits off two Wesleyan twirlers with every regular but Snow connecting safely, and took full advantage of eight errors by the Cardinal infield. Chuck Barnish and Joe Jayne, both sophomores, pitched for the Indians, the former allowing two hits in five innings and the latter blanking the home batters with no hits in four innings. In addition to his sparkling pitching, Jayne poked out two hits in three attempts. Triples by Jake Edwards and Bennett featured the Big Green offensive.

• Dartmouth's trained-in-the-cage baseball team went to New Haven on April 14 to open its Eastern Intercollegiate League campaign against Yale—and did themselves proud until the end of the eighth, when the Elis batted around for five runs and a decisive 9-3 victory. Rain fell heavily during the latter part of the game.

• Bob Miller started on the mound for Dartmouth, but he was bested by Captain Parker of Yale, who allowed the Indians only three scattered hits. The Eli batters nicked Dartmouth's ace for six hits in as many innings before Olsen took over the pitching job. Only one of Dartmouth's three hits figured in the run-making, Buster Snow's single sending in O'Brien with the Green's last tally in the seventh. The Indians' other two runs were manufactured in the sixth inning, when Parker's wild streak, his own error, and another by Walker enabled Keady and Morton to score without a hit.

- The game was a hitless affair until Yale's half of the fifth. In that frame three singles came off their bats for two runs. A pair of gift runs enabled Dartmouth to knot the count in the sixth, but the Elis again went ahead in their half of the inning when three successive doubles added two more tallies. The Indians came back with one run to cut this lead; however, the five scores in the wild eighth clinched the result. In this disastrous inning, two passes by Olsen, three hits and a couple of bad throws by Bennett, Green catcher, were involved in the run making. In the field Edwards and Spain starred for Dartmouth with spectacular plays.

- The Indians opened their home season on April 21 with an 8-0 decision over Lowell Textile. Miller allowed four scattered hits and fanned 17. The Providence game of April 27 was cancelled because of wet grounds, and on the following day the Indians downed New Hampshire at Portsmouth, 12-6. Miller struck out ten in this contest, and gave way to Roundey in the last innings. A fourth non-league victory was won when Dartmouth swamped a discouraged St. Michael's team 17-4, but only after the star sophomore hurler, Joe Jayne, was knocked out of the box in the third. With St. Michaels leading at the first half of the fourth, Dartmouth started a rally, scoring six runs; then in a wild ninth they piled up nine more. Both Edwards and O'Brien had field days at bat.

- The league contest with Yale at Hanover on May 5 was a nip-and-tuck affair, with Bob Miller getting the best of George Parker, Eli captain, in the return duel. Parker allowed only three hits, but he and his mates blew up in the eighth inning, during which errors, walks, and two double steals produced three Green runs. Miller was in excellent form, allowing five hits and striking out nine, and the game was probably the best of his collegiate career. Dartmouth took a one-run lead in the fourth on Morton's double and a sacrifice fly by Phil Clark, but Yale evened the count in the seventh when Gengerelly doubled and came home on Curtin's single to center. Then in the eighth Yale collapsed with two out. Spain reached first on a fielder's choice and stole second. Edwards walked and the two base-runners engineered a double steal, Spain scoring. Snow walked and continued to second as Edwards headed for home. Parker, dazed by the sudden turn of events, delayed his throw long enough to allow Edwards to slide in safely, and then followed this up with a wild pitch to second which advanced Snow to third base. Morton's infield fly scored Snow, and Phil Clark ended the session by flying out.

- The following week Dartmouth played a double header at Princeton, and dropped the second game after winning the opener, 8-4. Miller was in top form the entire game, allowing but one hit and fanning 11 Tiger batters, but this effectiveness was somewhat offset by the nine passes which he issued. Dartmouth collected ten hits off Fred Kammer, getting away to an early three-run lead in the first inning and scoring in every session but the last. Bill Hart, Green right-fielder, drove a home run into the center field in the third. Spain, with three hits in four tries, and Morton, with two out of three, led the Dartmouth attack. The seven Princeton errors were a decided asset to the Indians.

- Olsen took up the mound duties in the nightcap, and was effective until the seventh, when Princeton put on a rally which brought Miller back to action. Dartmouth again assumed a three-run lead in the first inning, getting to Gosnell for four hits, and added one more tally in the fourth, but the Tigers scored single runs in the second, third and sixth, and finally pulled the game out of the fire. In the seventh inning, LeVan reached first on a fielder's choice and Follansbee drove out his third hit of the day. Miller, tired after the first game, allowed a walk which filled the bases, and then Spencer smashed a single to left field, sending in the tying and winning runs.

- By dropping both ends of a double header with Columbia on May 19 Dartmouth was virtually eliminated from the league race. The scores at Morningside Heights were close, the first game going to the Lions, 5-4, in seven innings, and the second, 12-11, after the abbreviated game had been prolonged until the tenth inning. Miller and Meisel, who were mound opponents in the first game, entered the second contest in relief roles. Miller allowed only four hits in the opener, but one of these blows, a homer by McDowell, brought in four runs in the first inning. Edwards, Hart, and Bill Clark thumped out six of Dartmouth's eight hits, and scored all the runs. A two-run rally in the seventh brought the Big Green within one tally of tying the score, but King relieved Meisel and halted the uprising.

- Bob Roundey, who pitched fine ball against Providence a few days earlier, was given the starting call in the second game, but four hits and a walk by the first five Columbia batters to face him soon ended his stay on the mound. Ted Olsen took over the pitching duties and lasted until the fourth, when five more runs by the Lions brought Miller back into action. At that point the Indians began their rally and scored seven runs to even the score. The contest then settled down to another duel between Miller and Meisel, and only a desperate play finally gave Columbia the winning run.

- Dartmouth went into the Pennsylvania games with victories over Dunn's Parker, Cornell and Vermont tucked under their belts, and continued their winning streak by taking both games. In the first tilt Miller pitched a shut-out, and became the first pitcher in the Eastern League to be credited with such a performance.

- The following Saturday an inspired Green team took the Harvard Crimson for a ride, winning a 9-1 game in the league race. Miller held the opposing team to six hits and struck out eleven batters. In the return contest the Harvard team revenged its first defeat and nosed out the Indians in a tight battle, 5-4. Then, still suffering from their defeat, the Dartmouth team went down against the heavy batteries of Boston College, 6-2.

- In the last game of the season, Cornell took Dartmouth's measure, 9-2, before a commencement day throng of 4,000. The victory broke a tie in the league between the two teams, second place going to the Ithacans. After the first two Cornell batters in the second inning connected for a double and a single, Roundey was sent to the showers. Olsen who relieved Roundey, was hit for two more runs in the second, but thereafter he pitched impressively until the sixth when Miscall hit a home run with a man on.

1934 TRACK SEASON

Harry Hillman

- The Dartmouth Track Team had a better than average season last year. The indoor season did not look so good, and just previous to the Harvard-Cornell-Dartmouth Triangular Meet the services of Bob Michelet and Frank Lepreau were lost, a severe blow to the team, as with the aid of these two athletes Dartmouth would have been very close to the winner in this noted meet.
- On Feb. 17 at the University Meet in Boston, Dartmouth, with a limited team, came very close to winning the title from Harvard, the two teams being separated by only a few points. In an informal indoor meet with New Hampshire a week later Dartmouth won by a score of 80 to 19.
- It was not until the team went South during the Easter vacation that the candidates began to show promise. Upon the death of Captain Bob Michelet, the team became somewhat disorganized, as Bob was a great leader and a fine athlete and from the Coach down to the last recruit all greatly felt his loss. On top of Bob's loss, Frank Lepreau was taken sick, and his services were lost to the team for the year.
- Traveling in busses from Hanover, the enjoyable but tiresome trip landed the team at William and Mary College after two full days of riding. The meet was held the day after arrival with the boys pretty tired after the long journey, but when the points were counted, it was found that Dartmouth had nosed out a victory by the score of $67\frac{1}{2}$ to $58\frac{1}{2}$. However, bad luck seemed to follow the team as Rand, the ranking javelin thrower, injured his arm in the muddy take-off, and was lost to the team for not only the remaining meets of the trip, but was practically out for the season. Beardsley, who had developed into a very promising two miler, was injured and did not recover for the rest of the season.
- After the Saturday meet at Williamsburg, the team journeyed to Chapel Hill to meet University of North Carolina on Tuesday. North Carolina always has a fine track team. They are the Southern champions, never having lost a dual meet in that locality; Princeton and Penn State beat them quite a while ago in their only defeats in many years. The Dartmouth team put up a remarkable showing, and after a spirited battle won the meet by a score of 66 to 60. There was never a Dartmouth Track Team that showed more spirit and fought so gamely against odds as the 1934 team at North Carolina. It just would not be defeated.
- The team left for the University of Virginia for a meet on Friday and made a very good showing, winning by the score of 84 to 42.

- During the southern trip much progress was made in the developing of the candidates, and the trip was the means of discovering a real find in Lane Donovan, who ran some great quarter mile races. Steve Woodbury was elected Captain to fill the vacancy left by Bob Michelet's death, and he performed remarkably well on the trip, and in the last meet cleared 6 ft. 5 inches, barely missing 6 ft. 7½ inches. Bob Buttons clearly proved that he was a first rate sprinter. Don Hagerman from a mediocre shot putter showed much improvement; Bob Quimby did heroic service in his several races. The three meets on this trip did the boys, as a whole, a lot of good, as lack of competition has been one of the draw-backs in the development of Dartmouth Track Teams. It might be added that the boys paid for the greater portion of their trip themselves.
- Later in the spring campaign Dartmouth won from Colgate, tied the Army, and lost to Harvard. The team lost only one real meet of the seven on the schedule and that to a very good Harvard team. If the four athletes that were lost to the team had been available, the meet with Harvard would undoubtedly have been a very close one.
- Very few of the athletes attended the Intercollegiates. Few of the seniors could attend on account of the Comprehensive examinations; consequently few points were scored.
- For the third time in the history of Dartmouth Track athletics, a freshman won his letter in track. It is possible for freshmen to win a D, but some exceptional performance must be recorded to make this possible. Anthony Geniawicz shattered the college records in both the 16 lb. shot and the discus. He put the shot 50 ft. 2 inches and threw the discus 142 ft. 1 inch, breaking the shot record by over two feet and the discus record by almost seven feet.
- Bob Buttons equaled the college record of 10 seconds in the 100-yard dash at the Dartmouth-Army Meet at West Point. Steve Woodbury equaled Roy Brown's college record in the high jump, clearing the bar at 6 ft. 5¼ inches. R. G. Brister raised Mark Wright's pole vault record of 13 ft. 2¼ inches to 13 ft. 3 inches. It might be added that Wright's record was the former world's record, held by him for almost ten years until this event was greatly improved upon. In justice to Brister he cleared the bar at the Army Meet at 13 ft. 5 inches, but as the take-off at West Point was not even and leveled, he could not be allowed the record.
- Captain Steve Woodbury won the Smith Improvement Prize for the best improvement during his college career. Woodbury on entering Dartmouth had a record of 5 ft. 8 inches and during his four years competition, both as a freshman and a varsity athlete, he finally equaled the college record, making an improvement of 9¼ inches in four years.

- A very drastic reduction in its budget allowance left the Cross Country team of 1934 with practically nothing to work on. However, through the willingness of the many prospective candidates and under the able tutelage of Harvey Cohn, a team was formed which must be highly commended for its determination and faithfulness throughout the season.
- After the first call for candidates, the daily workouts began in earnest, and the time trials disclosed several men of fine calibre. A pre-season schedule called for a dual meet with Vermont and a triangular meet with Harvard and New Hampshire; but unfortunately these had to be cancelled in view of the financial situation.
- However, the boys on the squad continued their rigorous training with the hope that they might participate in the Intercollegiates in New York on Nov. 19. This trip was finally made possible through the splendid financial cooperation of the members of the team.
- D. F. Putnam, '36 was the first Dartmouth man to place in the meet in which there were 130 participants. He finished in 65th place, closely followed by his teammates: Johnson, Fortune, Lingley, Fager, Swift, and Ohlinger. The team placed 16th in the field of eighteen starting teams.
- As a result of their showing at New York, the following men received their letter insignia: Fortune, Johnson, Lingley, and Putnam. At their annual banquet of the team, J. M. Fortune, '36 was selected to captain the 1935 team. It is to be hoped that next year the team may be aided by more favorable circumstances than has been its fortune during the past two seasons.

1935 HOCKEY SEASON

- An eager group of aspirants answered Coach Herb Gill's call for varsity hockey candidates immediately after Thanksgiving. With practically his entire group of stars, champions of the Quadrangular League last year, having passed beyond the portals of their alma mater through graduation, it was no easy task that confronted Coach Gill to mould a worthy successor to this great aggregation. Although willing and anxious, the candidates plainly were green and untried. Only Guibord, Riley, and Fitzpatrick were veterans, while but Wolff and Butler had had much experience in previous seasons.
- Captain Frank Spain, the center of the famous Green attack of last year, had failed to return to school, and Paul Guibord, '36 was chosen to pilot the stickmen for the '35 season.
- Ice conditions were poor, as usual, handicapping considerably the early workouts. Coach Gill's inventive skill came into play when he introduced a pastime played with a soccer ball, which proved to be a combination of field hockey and soccer, to train the boys on the rudiments of the game.
- About a week before the first game with St. Anselm's at Hanover, ice was obtained on the Davis Rink, and initial practices started in earnest. The St. Anselm's game was colorless and proved to be an easy Dartmouth victory, 5 to 1.
- A game with the powerful Concord Hockey Club on the 19th was called off at the last minute when they found it impossible to come to Hanover. On the 21st the team left Hanover for its annual Christmas trip to Boston and New York.
- Opening with Boston College at the Arena on the night of the 21st, the team encountered its first real opposition of the season. Widely hailed as last year's "American Intercollegiate Hockey Champions," the Dartmouth team was eagerly anticipated. Boston College proved to be a stubborn opponent; the Dartmouth offense failed to click and the team came out on the short end of a 3-2 score.
- The following evening, the ever-strong Boston Olympic Club was engaged. Although the Olympic Club won 5-2, Dartmouth's fine play managed to keep the score within respectable limits. Messrs. Powers, Spain, McHugh, and Bennett of last year's Dartmouth team and the mainstays of the Olympic Club this year were continually thorns in the Dartmouth play.
- An informal interlude with the Braeburn Country Club sextet on Christmas eve netted the Big Green their first vacation victory, 3-1, following which they journeyed to New York for games with St. Nicks, Colgate, and the Crescent Athletic Club on the 28th, 29th, and 31st, respectively. Colgate proved the only victim, Dartmouth winning handily, 8-1, before a packed throng at the Playland rink in Rye. The showing against the other two powerful clubs was far from unsatisfactory. The Crescents proved later to be the most highly-tooted amateur team in the East.

• Back to Boston for the New Year, the team opened with Boston University on the 2nd, at the Arena, winning 4-2. A rapid trip into Central New York state, just before vacation ended, resulted in a loss to a sturdy Clarkson team, 5-2, and a victory over Hamilton College 3-0.

• The Christmas trip as a whole gave Dartmouth four wins to five defeats, not impressive, but fairly satisfactory when a consideration is taken of the excellent teams encountered. The tremendous value lay in the wide experience the players gained.

• Returning to Hanover, the Big Green engaged the Olympic Club of Quebec and Clarkson in a return game before academic examinations set in. The former, although highly regarded, fell before a new and greatly improved Dartmouth sextet, 6-1. The Clarkson game was a thriller throughout, Dartmouth repeatedly being on the verge of scoring, but failing at the last moment. Clarkson carried home the scalp of a thin 1-0 win. Nevertheless, the reaction of those who saw the game was distinctly favorable. Dartmouth, facing stern League competition ahead, seemed to be in shape.

• On February 2nd, Yale invaded Hanover for the first League game. The Elis had had a very successful record so far, and with Dartmouth players just emerging from a rigorous examination schedule, the Green had a battle on their hands. The contest opened evenly and for the first two periods it proved to be a close battle. The great reserve strength of Yale, however, began to have its effect and they closed with a 5-2 decision. Coach Gill was especially anxious to win this game, but with the opportunity lost, all interest shifted to the Carnival game with Harvard. Before an enthusiastic, capacity crowd of Carnival joy-seekers, Dartmouth's hopes for another hockey championship faded like the last rose of summer with the 6-2 defeat administered by Harvard. An unusual number of successful long shots and a stubborn Harvard defense were responsible for the unexpected one-sided score. Captain Watts and Dow of Harvard put on a remarkable display of defensive hockey throughout the game and made it exceedingly difficult for Guibord, Allen, Wolff and Co. to complete a play inside the blue line, so well did they both cover the wings and protect the territory around the nets. Besides their fine defensive work the two star defense men scored half of the team's tallies between them. The Dartmouth defense was found lacking on several important occasions during the contest.

• The team journeyed to New Haven the following weekend on the 15th of February to play Yale. Piling up a sizeable lead during the early portion of the game, Yale experienced the acute discomfort of having its superiority seriously questioned near the end of the first period, when Guibord and Riley pushed in two goals. Yale was visibly a strict defense. Before the Green could swing into further action the game ended giving Yale the victory 5-4.

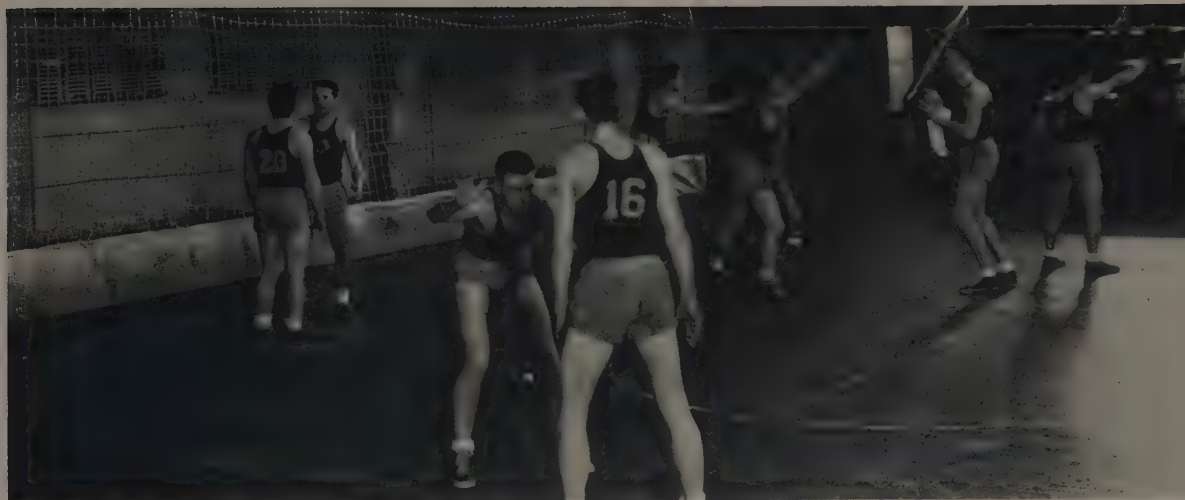

• Although chances to retain the League title were now out of the question, the team looked forward to the return engagement with Harvard at Boston, on the 22nd. Having taken the North Conway Granites in stride, 10-0, during the middle of the week, there was high expectation of a comeback. But the sons of Harvard would have something to say about that, unfortunately, and the far famed and highly experienced "H" line of Harvard lived up to its boast that it would teach Dartmouth a scoring lesson. The forward line of Hovenanian, Holmes, and Hallowell, although not figuring greatly in the scoring, proved the deciding factor in the Harvard victory, functioning superbly and with perfect teamwork for the most part. The Dartmouth play was somewhat ragged although the second line of Fitzpatrick, Riley, and Adams functioned better than was expected. The 9-3 score was devastating to Dartmouth's hopes.

• Princeton came to Hanover the first week-end in March to open its annual series with the Green sextet and windup the League season. Both teams were faced with the prospect of ending up in the cellar position of the Quadrangular League as the Tigers also had lost four games to Harvard and Yale. Captain Savage and his cohorts were firmly determined to carry home their first win, in which regard they found an equally strong determination in the Dartmouth squad. The two evenly matched teams met in the Davis Rink and at the end of three periods of play Captain Guibord had led his teammates to a deserved 5-4 triumph. The Dartmouth sextet played aggressive hockey for the first time all season. Trailing the Tigers twice during the game, the Green both times made up the deficit and then went ahead to take the offensive, successfully. Coach Gill pulled another winning trick out of his bag when he divided his offensive strength into three good forward units, each coming through with at least one easy tally. Guibord played especially well, drawing up to a tie in the League scoring leadership with Rodd of Yale and Hallowell of Harvard. Aldis Butler at defense was a vital factor in the Green victory.

• The team traveled to Princeton on the 9th of March for the final game of the season. The Tigers were intent on dragging the Green into the cellar in the final League standings. Eager to avenge their earlier defeat by Dartmouth, they assumed a commanding lead in the opening period and coasted to an easy 7-3 victory, although Dartmouth, inspired by the fine playing of Devlin and Guibord, fought them evenly in the last two chapters.

• Coach Gill's second season with the Dartmouth Hockey team met with innumerable difficulties in the way of material. The veterans of 1934 were sorely missed. The greater part of this year's squad will be back next year, and with the advantage of a season's experience, and under the able direction of Mr. Gill the outlook is bright for another championship team.

1935 BASKETBALL SEASON

Le Roy F. Ruether

- When basketball practice sessions started early in November, Captain-elect Bonniwell, who placed second in the league scoring race last season, was the only regular available. Hubbell had supplanted the injured Kraszewski very ably in the last seven games, but he was not yet a seasoned player. Davis and Krivitsky had seen some service in the line-up, but had had very little or no competitive experience. Thus, from the standpoint of experience we were rated very low; forecasts for the season 1934-1935 were pessimistic, and we were not expected to win many major games. Being made up largely of untried players, we were hard to rate as to ability, but we were 100% in spirit, willingness to work, and coaching, and it was on these that we based our chances of success.
- Dartmouth opened the 1934-1935 season at home, with a 24-13 win over Boston University. This game brought to light the inexperience of the Dartmouth team, and it was only due to the well-balanced scoring on the part of the first team that we emerged one up in the win column.
- When Vermont invaded Hanover, the Indians met a well-played zone defense. However, fine ball handling and a well-directed passing attack resulted in a 34-22 win for Dartmouth. Captain Al Bonniwell showed he still had his marvelously accurate eye for the basket by dropping in 7 field goals and 3 fouls for a total of 17 points.
- St. Anselm's brought a squad of expert ball-handlers who worried the Green continually throughout the first half, but a fast-breaking, hard-driving Indian second half pushed the score to a lop-sided 41-28 win for Dartmouth. Bonniwell made 21 points, his highest score for the season, while Connerton made 15 for the opposition.
- The Christmas trip this year was an especially hard one. We were scheduled to meet five of the strongest teams in the East. The first of these was the University Club of Stamford whom we played on December 20. This club was made up of former college stars, fresh from successful collegiate competition, and included such expert sharpshooters as Conroy and Czescik, and the fine floor man and strategist, Brachen of Providence. This strong Stamford team handed the Green a 27-24 defeat, after trailing us 15-12 at the half. The next night Dartmouth took over the 7th Regiment to the tune of 35-21. In the third game in as many nights, Dartmouth played a hard, fast game with City College. This was one of the closest games in the history of our competition

WILEY HUBBELL

with this school. We were beaten 26-22, but it was only in the closing minutes that C. C. N. Y. succeeded in getting as far as 4 points ahead of us. Davis was high scorer for Dartmouth with 8 points, and it was largely through his and Hubbell's fine defense work that we came so close to victory.

- After disbanding for the holidays, the team met again at Syracuse on January 5, where they were badly beaten, 57-30, by a smooth-functioning and greatly superior University of Syracuse team. On January 7, we avenged ourselves somewhat by taking Colgate over on their own court, 36-24. Bonniwell again proved his high scoring ability by ringing up 16 points.

- Two days after returning to school, the Indians met Providence College at home. Due to a very hard road trip, we tired badly in the second half, and the Providence club managed to get in a 42-35 win.

- In the first league game of the season for Dartmouth, we met Penn at home, losing 30-22. Penn showed in this game a fine team and a strong threat for the league title. Playing Princeton at Hanover for the next league game, Dartmouth won by 27-26. This game was hard-fought and close, but very slow throughout, and it was largely due to Bonniwell's 19 points that we broke into the league win column.

- The Columbia game, on January 18, resulted in a 37-22 defeat for the Indians. The loss was largely due to the Green's inability to score consistently from the floor. In the second game against Princeton, the Indians won another close one at 34-32. However, the Green stayed out in front during most of the game, relinquishing the lead only once, late in the second half. On February 6, Harvard handed us a surprise defeat by 30-19. The Indian marksmanship fell way below par after the long layoff due to exams, and with Harvard on its toes, capitalizing every break, we were well licked.

- The Alumni and Carnival guests were enthusiastically pleased by a 42-20 defeat of Yale, which had just previously won from the previously undefeated N. Y. U. team. Dartmouth played great ball in this game, and with all the players scoring well, the victory was never in doubt.

- A three game road trip started with a 29-20 win over Cornell. With all the Dartmouth players taking a hand in the scoring, it was a pleasing victory, as Cornell is always hard to beat on its own court. Jack Davis' close guarding of the diminutive Cornell star, Fried, was an important factor in keeping the Cornell attack subdued. Dartmouth invaded the Palestra on February 16, and lost its second game to Penn, 29-26, in an exciting and well-played game.

Art Toan broke into the starting lineup in this game and made 12 points for the Green. Yale avenged itself for the Carnival defeat by sending us home on the short end of a 37-33 score. On this trip, the Dartmouth team displayed an extremely good brand of basketball, and with the breaks, we could have won all three games.

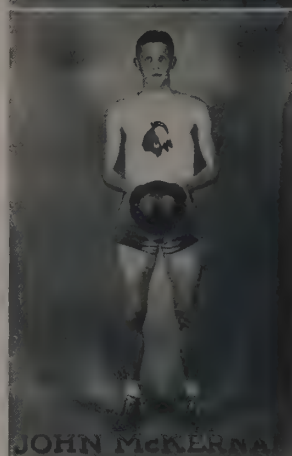

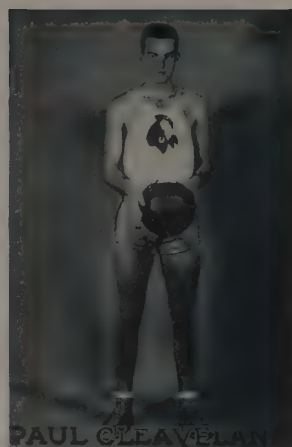

- After a week's layoff from travelling, Dartmouth handed Columbia her first league defeat of the season, 36-31. Again the Green played extremely well, and showed a well-rounded scoring ability, which, in refusing to show itself earlier in the season, had meant defeat several times. This clean-cut victory over the Lions was the high-light of the season. An enthusiastic Alumni Day crowd saw an aroused and fighting Dartmouth team avenge an early season defeat. Jack Davis and Al Bonniwell combined to lead the Green in scoring and were ably assisted both offensively and defensively by Hubbell, McKernan, and Parachini. Cleveland's two sensational field goals late in the second half gave the margin of victory to the Indians. This was easily one of the best games seen here in years.

- Continuing this fine play, the team functioned nicely in all departments of the game, and at half-time led a determined and fighting Harvard team, 17-12. At the opening of the second half, Hubbell came through with a couple of very fine baskets and showed some of the fine form he had last year. With the added assistance of Davis, Bonniwell, and Conti, we drew farther ahead to come home with a 37-24 victory.

- In the last game of the season, Cornell was easily defeated by a score of 43-28. The game was Dartmouth's from the start, and at the half, the local team had rolled up a 24-16 margin; the second half was almost a replica of the first, and the Green team continued to widen its margin throughout the rest of the game. Jack Davis, Wiley Hubbell, and Sid Krivitsky, as well as Captain Al Bonniwell, finished up their playing careers for the Green in this contest.

- The outstanding feature of the season was the work of Al Bonniwell, who led the Green ably and well, and who, this season, broke the league scoring record, formerly held by Ferraro, by 18 points; he sank 144 points in the twelve league contests, a remarkable average of 12 points per game.

- After not having been conceded a victory at the beginning of the season, the team came through with a record of 7 wins and 5 losses in league games, and 5 wins and 4 losses in outside games. This record gives Dartmouth undisputed possession of third place in the league standing, directly behind Columbia and Pennsylvania.

• The 1934 soccer team enjoyed a fairly successful season, winning three, tying one, and losing four of its eight games. The Green team started off well with two home victories over Fitchburg State Teachers and Rensselaer. Playing on a sodden field, the Indians easily overcame the highly touted but rather weak Fitchburg team, and then, showing the efforts of a week's practice, combined an impregnable defense with a steady offense to win the second contest.

• In the next two contests, Dartmouth was less fortunate. Springfield came to Hanover and displayed power in all departments to win 3-0. The Indians then journeyed to Harvard and lost, 4-0, as Harvard's whirlwind second half broke a tie jinx that had been dogging the two teams for three years. The next day, the Green snapped out of its slump and sank M. I. T., 4-1, on the latter's home pond. Dartmouth next journeyed to Providence and lost to Brown in a hard, well-played, over-time game, 5-4.

• The season ended with a two-game trip to Ithaca and Syracuse where the Indians held Cornell, the North Atlantic League Champions to a 1-1 tie before losing to a strong Syracuse team, 5-1.

The team, however, was able to win 50% of its meets, and might well have won two of the others, losing both by the score of 37-34.

• The highlights of the season: Frank Specht sets a new Dartmouth record for the 440 in the McGill meet; Yale breaks two pool records in its meet at Carnival, Cook and Hoyt winning the 220 and 440, respectively; in the fancy diving Jack Smith hands Buckingham of Yale his first defeat of the year; Doug Ley takes both the 50 and the 100 yard free-style against Princeton, Fred Weiss being the only other Dartmouth winner; Capt. Crouse, in his first appearance, wins the 50 in the Syracuse meet; the relay team ties the Brown four, but Dartmouth loses 37-34; Bill Sayre sets a new Brown pool record in the breast-stroke; Dartmouth loses the last meet of the season to Harvard, despite the efforts of Smith and Crouse.

• The lacrosse team opened the season with a loss to the Boston Lacrosse Club, Dartmouth's first defeat in two years. At Yale, the first team did most of the work to bring back a 5-4 victory but on the trip west the following week, Dartmouth took its worst defeat of the season from Syracuse, 11-6. This defeat was revenged two days later by trouncing Hobart, 10-3, all of the goals coming in the second half. The final game, Harvard at Hanover, saw the Green team reach its peak. The goal work of Captain Shea held the Crimson scoreless for the first half, and allowed Dartmouth to pull out a 6-3 victory.

• With the 1934-35 season Dartmouth again took her place in the Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastic League. Two years ago, it was found to be financially impossible to maintain Gymnastics, along with several other sports, with full Varsity schedules; consequently affiliations were maintained with the League as a "non-competing" member.

• On March 24, 1934, the Intercollegiates were held at Princeton, at which time Captain D. M. Schuyler, '34, placed third in Tumbling. At the New England A. A. U. Senior Meet, April 21st, Dartmouth placed second for the team prize. Herman Dock, '36, won first in the Rope Climb and established a new 25 foot record of 6½ seconds; second place was won by F. L. Engel, '34. C. H. Funke, '35, took second place in the Rings and D. M. Schuyler, '34, received second honors in Tumbling.

• In the New England A. A. U. Junior Meet Dartmouth also placed second for team honors. F. L. Engel, '34, won the Rope Climb with H. Dock, '36, second. C. H. Funke, '35 was second in the Flying Rings and P. C. Hessler, '36, took third. Fourth place in Tumbling was awarded to R. H. Morton, '36.

• For the National A. A. U. Senior Championships at Baltimore, Md., H. Dock, '36 with no financial support from the Athletic Council, sent in his application, and then proceeded to hitchhike all the way to Baltimore. The trip was not in vain, for he took first place in the Senior Championship Rope Climb, and at the end of his season was awarded the Forsell Cup, given annually to the member of the Gym Team scoring the highest number of points.

• As the Aegis goes to press Dartmouth has had but one meet this season. On February 16, Princeton was defeated by the Indians 29 to 25 in the first dual League meet since 1933.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

- On September 19th one hundred and eighty-five men reported to Coach Hazelton for the initial practice of the 1938 Freshman Football Season.
- From this large squad Coach Hazelton was forced to produce a team in ten days to meet Clark School on September 29. The game was played in a downpour with the field a sea of mud. This game, although it brought out many defects which had to be remedied, proved that the team had a good deal of material in such men as Alex, Hollingworth, Heil, and Christiansen in the backfield, and Cannell, Davis, Duckworth and McNeil in the line. The Freshmen rolled up thirteen points to Clark School's none.
- In the second game of the season, the 1938 team found a much stronger opponent in a large, heavy team from Roxbury. In the middle of the first period, White, Dartmouth right tackle, blocked a Roxbury punt behind the goal line for the only score of the game, Dartmouth winning 2 to 0.
- Before meeting the 1938 team from the University of New Hampshire on the following week-end, Bernard Alex, regular left-half was elected to captain the team for the remainder of the season. Alex was well deserving of the honor, having been the most consistent ground gainer on the team. The game with the New Hampshire Freshman was probably the best game of the season from the spectator's view-point. Midway through the first quarter, Captain Alex knifed his way through left tackle for twelve yards and a touchdown. In the second period, Davis, stellar end, blocked a punt behind New Hampshire's goal line, and fell on the ball for a touchdown. The game ended with the Freshmen out in front, 14 to 6. The work of Davis, Ewing, Duckworth and McNeil in the line was especially noteworthy, with Alex, Dawkins and Christiansen gaining the ground from the backfield, aided by some great blocking by Heil.
- After a lay-off of two weeks the team journeyed to Cambridge to meet Harvard '38. The game turned out to be one of the great disappointments of the season with Harvard crushing every effort of the Green Yearlings and severely trouncing them, 27 to 0.
- Although the 1938 team cannot credit itself with the usual undefeated record of past Dartmouth Freshmen teams, its season can well be considered successful. With an entirely new coaching staff at Dartmouth, the Freshman, under Coach Hazelton, contributed greatly to the success of the Dartmouth Varsity. Two or three afternoons a week, Coach Hazelton and his proteges trekked over from Chase field to scrimmage the varsity. The Freshmen gained considerable insight into the manner of Dartmouth football; used Yale, Harvard, and Cornell plays against the varsity; even wore blue and red jerseys to make the scrimmages seem more realistic. Naturally, although this proved very beneficial to the varsity, the freshmen were forced to neglect their own games, and this accounted to some extent for the loss of the Harvard game.
- Outstanding work was contributed throughout the season by such players as Alex, Christiansen, Hollingworth, Heil, McNeil, Davis and Frick.

- Hindered by unfavorable weather, the '37 team got off to a late start but developed rapidly under the direction of Coach Hazelton. The first game was played on May 1 against the Clark School nine, and the yearlings came out on the long end of a 9-1 score. Bruce and Kiernan formed the battery for Dartmouth, and they were well supported by the entire team. Casey, playing right field, showed the way at bat, knocking three hits out of four times at bat, one going for a home run. Ratajczak showed up well both at bat and in the field. The combination which played this game did most of the work for the remainder of the season. Outside of the battery, the team was made up of Broadbent at first, Barrett at second, Ross at third, Ratajczak at short, Longley in left field, Casey in center field, and Johnson in right field.
- Hanover High School furnished the opposition for the second game, which the freshmen won, 19-1. Palumbo did most of the twirling, being relieved by Graves for the last two innings. Following this game, Ratajczak was elected captain because of his steady and consistently good playing.
- On May 11 the team travelled to Boston to meet the Boston College freshmen. With Bruce pitching two-hit ball, and with air-tight support from the rest of the team, the '37 club nosed out the opposition by a 4-3 count. Bruce definitely settled the outcome with a well-placed home run in the ninth inning.
- The Maine School of Commerce and New Hampton provided little opposition for the fast-travelling freshmen. Curtis, Cook, and Ochsner held the Maine team in check, while the Bruce-Kiernan combination stopped the New Hampton batters with three hits. In the latter game the freshmen made fourteen hits, Casey being credited with four, and Ratajczak and Johnson each with three.
- Curtis and Kiernan composed the battery for Dartmouth against Austin Cate Academy. The freshmen jumped into a seven run lead in the first two innings and were never in very great danger for the remainder of the game, which they won 7-3.
- Bruce again led his teammates to victories in the last two games of the season. They allowed Tilton only one run and three hits while gathering five runs on eleven hits for themselves. The University of Vermont freshmen managed to get seven runs, more than any of the earlier opponents had been able to manufacture, but allowed Dartmouth to pile up nineteen.
- Throughout the season, the team worked well together, finishing an eight game schedule without the loss of a single contest. Captain Ratajczak played a fine game in the field, often making catches that were labelled for hits. Casey led the team in batting with an average of .531; Barrett did a great job at second; Kiernan played a sterling game behind the plate, while Bruce was a main factor in five of the team's victories.

- For the third year in a row the Dartmouth freshman team won all of its games except the one with its closest rivals, the Harvard freshmen.
- When the opening call was issued in November, Coach Evans met a group of seventy-five candidates, a somewhat smaller number than usual. Out of this list the most capable men were weeded in short order, for the opening game with Montpelier Seminary was scheduled for December 10, a much earlier date than usual. The prep school boys showed a lot of hustle, but their lack of reserves, plus a well organized freshman offense and defense, sent them down to defeat by a 44-13 score. The scoring was fairly well divided between the first two teams.
- The second game of the season, with Clark School, gave Coach Evans an excellent chance to get a line on the members of his first three teams. The final score was 59-11 in favor of the freshmen. The next opponent was another town rival, Hanover High School, which bowed by a score of 32-6. Coach Evans used his first and second teams each for one period, and then after the intermission, gave every man in uniform a chance to show his ability.
- The following game was not a part of the original schedule, but came as the result of an informal challenge from Stevens High School of Claremont. This team had piled up quite an enviable record in winning twelve games in a row. The Stevens team started out aggressively, and in the early minutes of the first half gave the freshmen their first taste of being on the short end of the score. But the team rallied and took a lead near the middle of the half, which they never relinquished, winning by a score of 40-26. After this game, W. K. Thomas, a very capable guard, was elected captain of the team.
- The annual trip to Cambridge to do battle with the Harvard freshmen found Captain Thomas and his mates losing their only contest of the year. Harvard took an early lead, which it held at half-time, and then spurted in the second half to win by 35-17. The Harvard team played far better than in any of their previous games, while the Dartmouth team was off its usual game.
- Tilton Academy brought to Hanover a well-drilled team, which was capable of forcing the freshmen to the utmost. Mostly due to some excellent work in tapping in rebounds by Barkley, tall center, the freshmen took an early lead and finished up the contest in front by 33-21. In the game with New Hampton, the freshmen were off to a fast start, with a 34-7 lead at half-time, and coasted through to an easy victory by a 56-23 score. In the last game of the season, Kimball Union Academy came to Hanover to receive a good trouncing, 41-21. The freshmen had little trouble with the Academy boys and ended their season with a display of power.

FRESHMAN HOCKEY

- A record squad of 56 men turned out late in November to begin preliminary training under the able coaching of H. B. Gill who came to Dartmouth in the fall of '33 from a most successful career at Choate School. The squad suffered greatly from the drastic cuts of Coach Gill, long and strenuous drills, and academic difficulties. However, it wasn't many weeks before a well coordinated first string team was developed, and with several able reserves the freshmen won five out of a schedule of eight games. Of the remaining three games, one was a tie, and the other two defeats. One of the most surprising things about the season was the unusually large following which supported the team throughout the schedule.
- After an easy victory over the New Hampton team, the Yearling stickmen earned a 5 to 5 tie with the Hillhouse team from New Haven, the game remaining undecided even after an eventful over-time period. Egelhoff, Mather, and Wakefield were the scorers for Dartmouth while Captain Faegre in the goal played his usual excellent game.
- The season advanced with well-earned victories over Clark School of Hanover and a strong team from Nichols Junior College. But with the Exeter stickmen the Dartmouth team struck a snag. The game was an excellent example of Coach Gill's training in that both the first and second string forwards worked consistently as a team, but the outcome was unfavorable—just another case of the best team losing.
- The results of two long practice drills were shown in the victories of February ninth and twelfth over St. Paul's School from Concord and the Tilton School team. The former was the most surprising victory and by far the most desired in that the Dartmouth freshmen have been taking defeats from the school since 1925. The Yearlings did not win easily, however, and only because of the good work of Faegre was the St. Paul's team kept scoreless. The game with Tilton was nothing more than a wild circus, the Green team scoring all of six goals to the one score of the losers. Most of the game the Tilton goal was completely swamped by fast charging Indians whose corner shots had the defending goal-tender sliding from side to side in vain attempts to be of some use. The entire squad was given an opportunity to show its ability.
- Still feeling in a victorious mood the team prepared itself for the final and most difficult game of the season, determined, even in the face of the strong Harvard team, to maintain its undefeated record on the home ice. The first period proved to be disastrous, however, and by the time the Gill men began to exert themselves they were at the tail end of a 6 to 0 score. Their determination netted them but two scores while the Crimson team scored five more goals. The defeat was hard to take, but all in all the season was most successful.

● When a man bites a dog, that's news; and so it is when college records fall to the mercy of the freshmen. In the indoor meet with the varsity during the winter, Hoffstetter lowered the college record for the 300 to 32:2. Captain Tony Geniawicz twice set new distances in the 16 lb. shot put, reaching his climax in the New Hampshire meet with a heave of 52 ft. 2 inches. The following week he hung up another new college record, this time in the discus, with a spin of 142 ft. 1 inch.

● In the meet with the New Hampshire State freshmen, the Dartmouth representatives swept every first place and several seconds; there were five double winners. The Andover meet was not quite so fortunate and stronger competition combined with a weakened Dartmouth team allowed the Academy boys to get away with an 84 $\frac{2}{3}$ to 41 $\frac{1}{3}$ victory. A large share of Dartmouth's points were scored in field events, due to the work of Geniawicz, Cole, and Bunce.

• Coach Sid Hazelton's characterization of the undefeated freshman swimming team as "the best balanced team in several seasons" is substantiated not only by the actual scores of the five meets but also by the number of pool records broken. "Dartmouth should have a well-balanced varsity next year," Coach Hazelton further added.

• After taking the Glens Falls High School into camp to the tune of 45 to 26, the yearlings journeyed to Andover to come out again on the long end of the score, 37-28, and to set new records. Mills set a new freshman and pool record of 1:05½ in the 100-yard backstroke, and Gilbert, White, and Howard set a new low in the 150-yard medley relay by turning in the fine time of 1:30 flat. Boston College High School fell an easy prey when the '38 team won by the huge margin of 53 points, the final score being 62-9. Although winning by a margin indicative of much keener competition, the yearlings added another victory, this time outswimming Gardner High School's team to the tune of 39-26. At this time Captain Fletcher equalled the time of 2:12 set by Ballard, '34 in the 200-yard freestyle event. By far the most exciting meet of the year was with Exeter. Swimming in an abnormally slow pool, the meet was anybody's, it remaining for the final event to decide the winner. However, by clinching the 200-yard relay, Whitcomb, Mills, Hartung, and Captain Fletcher left the Exonians on the short end of the 34-31 score.

- The department of Intramural Athletics was developed at Dartmouth six years ago in response to a growing demand for an authoritative body responsible for a systematized regulation of intramural activities on the campus. The purpose of the department is to make it possible for each individual to participate in some form of organized athletic competition, and to promote a program of activities that will encourage group organizations for recreative and competitive purposes.
- The department has not necessarily confined its attention entirely to group activity but has offered means for the expression of individual effort through open tournaments in Handball, Squash, Tennis, Football Skills, Foul Shooting, Boxing, and Wrestling. For group activities the department sponsors Touch Football, Rugby Football, Soccer, Basketball, Hockey, Winter Sports, Handball, Squash, Swimming, Gym, Water Polo, Ping-Pong, Track, Baseball, Golf, and Tennis.
- Awards are made to the winners in the various activities. Charms are given to individuals and cups to the organization represented. Furthermore, an all-year participation cup is awarded to the fraternity amassing the highest total score in all contests during the year, these points being compiled according to the scoring system outlined in the Intramural Handbook. Likewise, a plaque is awarded to the winning dormitory, and these awards become the permanent possession of the units first winning them three times.
- Another feature of the intramural program, inaugurated last year, is that form of participation known as "extra-murals" or intercollegiate intramurals. Thus far, we have been able to arrange meets with Harvard only, first up here, and this year down in Cambridge. The contests have been in basketball, boxing, and wrestling.
- The Organization of Intramurals is composed of the director of recreational activities, the manager of intramural sports, and two activities managers. The first named is directly responsible for the proper conduct of the department, while the managers are responsible for arranging schedules and for the practical operation of the program.

FRATERNITY ACTIVITIES

- As this article goes to press the fraternity sports program is only about half completed. Touch football, tennis, basketball, and hockey championships have been determined and the winter derby has been run off. But the championships in swimming, squash, track, baseball, golf, handball, and the new ping-pong tournament are yet to be decided.

- The fraternity touch football campaign was marked by unusually close games and a higher development of team play than in previous years. The Sigma Chi team carried off the championship, edging the Alpha Delts in an overtime game final. Pi Lambda Phi, the defending champions, failed to reach the playoffs, being eliminated by a strong Alpha Sig team. The Sigma Chi outfit grew steadily better as the season progressed and by the end of their schedule had worked up a clever offense that had more deception than that of any other team in the tournament. Led by the speedy Howie Croninger, John McKernan and Bob MacPherson the Sigma Chis beat the Kappa Sigs 18-6, the Tri-Kaps 24-18 and won by forfeit from the Phi Delts. In their first game in the playoffs they came from behind with a spectacular second-half drive and beat Phi Gamma Delta 24-12. Croninger's shifty running and MacPherson's long punts and accurate passes featured their attack. In the semi-finals Sigma Chi downed Alpha Sigma Phi 24-12 largely because of MacPherson's slight edge in the punting duel. This victory put the Sigs in the finals with Alpha Delta Phi, who had displayed a clever brand of ball all year and were generally recognized as the favorites for the championship. They had beaten Sigma Alpha Mu 12-6, turned in an easy victory over A. T. O. and had taken an overtime victory 18-6 over Chi Phi. This last game was one of the season's best and was finally decided by a forty-five yard pass from Jack Davis to Tauno Frigard. In the fourth quarter Chi Phi had matched a long Davis to Steinle touchdown pass with a clever return of the kick-off the length of the field. In their first play-off game the A. D.'s overwhelmed Sigma Alpha Epsilon; then they proceeded to hand a fast Zeta Psi team an 18-6 licking. In both these games the beautiful passing of Davis and the sure-handed receiving of Frigard, O'Brien, and Steinle featured.

- The final game, between the Alpha Delts and the Sigma Chis, did not disappoint the crowd of several hundred spectators that lined the field. Sigma Chi scored early in the first quarter on a series of short passes, but the A. D.'s, undaunted, ran the subsequent kick-off back for a touchdown, Jack Smith going over for the score. The A. D.'s took the lead in the second quarter when Bob Husted snared a long pass from Davis in the end zone. In the last quarter MacPherson and McKernan completed a long pass for another touchdown, tying the score again. In the overtime period Croninger got loose for a long run and then flipped a short pass into McKernan's arms in the end zone. Thus Sigma Chi won a well-deserved victory, 18-12. During the game the A. D.'s relied mainly on the clever pass work of Davis who, by the census of opinion, was the best all-around player of the season. The Sigma Chis had a more varied attack and frequently confused opponents and spectators with cleverly executed reverses and fake plays. They proved themselves to be the most superior team on campus when they downed Gile, the dormitory champions, 18-6. A series of down-the-alley passes from MacPherson to McKernan proved too much for the scrappy dorm team.

- The fraternity tennis title was won by Theta Delta Chi's clever doubles team of C. H. Sewall, '35 and F. C. Chase, '35. They defeated G. P. Hoke, '35 and W. A. Ferguson, '36, the Beta Theta Pi team, in the final round. There were many good teams in the tournament and Coach Gill kept watch for varsity prospects among them.

- The fraternity basketball tournament, always one of the most hotly contested sports, was unusually close this year. For the first time in five years Psi Upsilon failed to carry off the title, and for the first time in four years Sigma Phi Epsilon failed to reach the finals. These two teams could not get past the semi-final round, although Psi U's team was generally conceded to be stronger than last year's championship five. Alpha Delta Phi, coming fast in the latter part of the season, swept through to the championship. They trimmed a rugged Phi Gam team in the finals. The Alpha Delts had a clever team and were undoubtedly the strongest of the fraternity teams. Jim Dickinson and John Todd played at the forward positions, big El Camp jumped center and made himself very useful as a pivot man, and Tauno Frigard and Paul Lefebvre were the guards. The East Wheelock league was thrown into a three-way tie when Chi Phi upset the A. D.'s in a three-overtime period thriller. When the triple tie was played off, however, the A. D.'s had little trouble beating Sigma Alpha Mu and they staved off a second-half Chi Phi rally led by Jim Tracy to qualify for the playoffs. Clicking beautifully in their first playoff game the A. D.'s swamped the Phi Delts 55-11. Frigard had his eye on the basket and totaled sixteen points. Moving on to the next round the Alpha Delts encountered the fast and aggressive Psi U team. The game was very close all the way and there was no let-up in the fast play. Eddie Williams, Put Kingsbury and Henry Broadbent led the Psi U's, but the A. D.'s superiority began to show near the end of the game and they pulled ahead to win, 30-25. El Camp was high scorer with nine points while Jim Dickinson played his usual fast and clever floor game.

- The Phi Gamma Delta team reached the finals after definitely demonstrating their superiority over all the teams they met. In their first playoff game they kept the speedy Ed Oakley under control and with Dick Carpenter finding the basket for nineteen points beat the Phi Sigs 40-31. The Phi Sigs had a slight lead until the last quarter. Carpenter was by all odds the most valuable man on the floor and the Phi Sigs' inability to stop the big center cost them the game. Phil Clark also played an outstanding game for the winners. In their semi-final game with Sigma Phi Epsilon the Phi Gams found the range in the second half and ran up a barrage of scores winning 45-27. Carpenter once more led the attack, totaling 21 points. Phil Clark and Dick Dodge gave him good support.

- The final game between the A. D.'s and the Phi Gams drew a large audience of enthusiastic and noisy fans. The Alpha Delts forged ahead in the last period to win 27-19. El Camp played a fine defensive game and completely checked Carpenter. John Todd led the scoring with twelve points. He seemed to be able to break away for scores at the critical moments. The real spark of the A. D.'s, however, was the veteran Jim Dickinson. All over the floor, he thrilled the spectators time and again with his deceptive passwork and elusive dribbling. The Alpha Delts obviously had the better team, and their victory was well-earned.

- The next day the Alpha Delts met Russell Sage's ball team in the College Championship battle. The A. D.'s were heavy favorites to win, but Sage, which had swept through the dormitory league with ease, played a fine brand of ball and finally won 35-34. The game was fast and furious from start to finish and at the end of the regulation playing time the score was 30-30. In the overtime period Frigard and Dickinson each dropped in a spectacular field goal, but Sage more than matched them with Dunbar's three points and a field goal by Gray. Dickinson played another grand game but to no avail. This marked the first time in many years that a dormitory team has beaten the fraternity title-holders for the college championship. Sage went on to defeat Lowell House, the Harvard intramural champions, at Cambridge.

- In fraternity hockey an unusually large amount of interest was shown. From the beginning it became evident that the defending champions, Phi Sigma Kappa, and the strong Phi Gam aggregation would be the teams to beat. The Phi Sigs boasted a brilliant forward line in the veterans Ed Chamberlain, Elmer Wanstall and Phil Scully, and a truly fine goalie in Walter Johnson. Phi Gamma Delta boasted a good attack led by their aces Putnam and Bill Lingley. The Phi Sigs entered the final round after having defeated the A. T. O.'s in a closely contested battle 3-1, and the D. U.'s by a score of 8-1. Phi Gam started slowly, but soon picked up speed and eliminated the Betas. The final game was won by the Phi Sigs with little difficulty. With their strong front line playing well together, they ran up six goals, while the nonchalant Johnson permitted only one score for the Phi Gams. Putnam, as usual, led the Phi Gams and played a brilliant game; however the smooth teamwork of the victors proved too much.

- So much for the sports that have so far been completed. The all-year championship is by no means decided at this point. The winter sports have not as yet been fully tabulated; the squash, handball, and ping-pong tourneys are just commencing; and swimming, track, baseball and golf lie in the future. All in all the season has been highly successful, and has shown a decided increase over the past two years—to the point where such activities are coming to play an important part in the lives of Dartmouth students.

DORMITORY ACTIVITIES

- At this time the dormitory schedule is but half completed, with the championships having been determined in touch-football, basketball, and hockey, but with volleyball, winter sports, squash, and playground ball yet to be run off.
- The touch-football season was a huge success, with but three forfeitures being registered during the entire campaign, and two of these by one team. At the beginning of the season there seemed to be no outstanding team, with all games very closely contested, and many teams potential champions. Gile, New Hampshire, Woodward, North Mass, and Fayerweather managed to eke out championships in their respective leagues, however, and they entered the playoffs with each having an equal chance for the championship.
- Gile came into the playoffs with a record of successive triumphs over Streeter, Sage, and Lord by the scores of 28-6, 12-2, and 12-8, respectively. This last game was a mighty close call, but Sloggett and Brown, both sophomores, managed to tote the ball over the goal line for the winning scores. In the first playoff, Gile again had a very close call, this time just managing to take Woodward 14-8. Up to this game, Woodward had not been scored on, defeating both Ripley and South Fayer by the score of 6-0, and winning over Smith by a forfeit. The sophomores again starred for Gile, but with Mays, a very promising freshman, taking a long pass in the end zone to provide the winning margin, and put his club into the finals with New Hampshire.
- New Hampshire also entered the playoffs by winning its league championship in straight games, beating College 20-0, Crosby 12-0, and Topliff 24-8, and while its defense was of the best, its offense seemed to lack that coordination which typifies a team of true championship caliber, despite the fact that it had run up rather impressive scores in league games. In the playoffs New Hamp first met North Mass, who had an excellent offensive aggregation, but whose defense was woefully weak. Thus, the former was able to squeeze out a 12-6 verdict and enter the semi-finals with Fayerweather, another strong defensive club, but rather weak on the attack. As might be expected, this was a strictly defensive game, with both teams refusing to grant the other any appreciable gain, and just when it seemed the game would go into overtime, the winning break came—Thorpe, '38 of New Hamp fell on a fumbled ball in the end zone to give his team a 6-0 victory on the very last play of the game, putting his team into the finals with Gile.
- The final game between these two teams loomed up as one of a powerhouse offense against a stonewall defense, and may the better unit win. Gile's offense, however, was just a little too much for New Hamp's defense, and thereby came through with a hard-earned 12-0 victory, proving, incidentally, that the age-old maxim that the best defense is a good offense! Gile's margin of victory was again provided by the superior teamwork of her experienced sophomores, Sloggett, Paeschke, and Brown, although they were ably aided and abetted by two freshmen, Olsen and Mays. By winning this game, Gile also won the privilege of playing the fraternity champions, Sigma Chi, for the College Championship. The Sigma Chis showed all-around superiority, and their McPherson to McKernan passing combination was more than the Gile defense could cope with. Nevertheless, the dorm champs never gave up trying, and they caused the fraternity title holders some uncomfortable moments at the end with their frantic scoring efforts, which did succeed in bringing them one touchdown after a brilliant series of lateral passes. This was not enough, however, and the final gun found them on the short end of an 18-6 score.
- As the dormitory basketball season progressed four teams stood out as the best—Sage, North Mass, North Fayer and Middle Fayer. North Fayer, however, failed to reach the playoffs, being eliminated in a thrilling overtime game by its arch-rival, Middle Fayer. North Fayer was led by the clever play and good shooting of its center, McConeghy. Middle Fayer was led to victory by the outstanding play of Van Kirk, a left-handed sharpshooter, and Alex, their big guard. Five teams battled their way to the playoffs. In addition to Fayerweather, North Mass and Sage, South Fayer (the defending champions) and New Hampshire entered the elimination rounds. South Fayer's team was considerably weaker than the year before, and it fell easy prey to Sage's high-scoring outfit 46-15. Howie Dunbar, '38 and Bob Reno, '38 dropped in 15 and 14 points respectively for the winners. Fred Hathaway, '37 played the best game for the losers.

- In the meantime, Middle Fayer, weakened by the loss of Alex, was defeated by North Mass, 16-9. Although holding North Mass to its lowest score of the year, the Middle Fayer boys had little to offer in the way of offense. The victors were led by Hollingsworth, '38 who totaled eight points, half of his team's score. The next team to be eliminated from the pennant race was New Hamp, which couldn't match the strong North Mass attack.

- Advance dope on the final game between Sage and North Mass presaged a close and hard-fought battle. But the dope bucket was upset as Sage turned the game into a rout, winning by the lopsided margin of 52-22. The Sage attack centered around Dunbar, whose spectacular play all year had put him far in the van in the individual scoring column. Dunbar, playing in the pivot position, scored 22 points; he was given beautiful support by two exceptionally good forwards, Reno and Spang, and a pair of steady guards, Colley and Gray. For North Mass, Mosenthal, '38 was easily the outstanding player, his deadly eye for the basket accounting for sixteen of the loser's twenty-two points.

- The biggest upset of the entire intramural season occurred when Sage edged out Alpha Delta Phi, the fraternity champions, in a thrilling College Championship game 35-34. The game went into one overtime period and the dormitory team's ability to come through under pressure brought it a richly deserved victory. With seven seconds to play in the fourth quarter Sage was trailing 30-29 when Reno came through with a vital foul shot to tie the score. In the overtime period field goals by Gray and Dunbar and a free throw by Dunbar more than matched spectacular field goals by Dickenson and Frigard for the fraternity team.

- The Russell Sage team was given the honor of representing the College in a game with Lowell House, the Champions of the Harvard House League, at Cambridge on February 23. The Lowell House aggregation, winner of thirteen consecutive games and touted as by far the strongest team in the Harvard intramurals, could not stop Sage's clever passing and accurate shooting. The final gun found Sage leading 30-14. More or less tired out by a strenuous auto trip in a storm of snow and sleet, the Sage team played a more deliberate game than usual, making up in sure ball-handling and exceptionally good shooting what they lacked in dash. Dunbar again was high scorer, with eleven points, but the victory was due to the clever play of the entire team, rather than to the brilliance of one man. A survey of Sage's record for the season demonstrated that the team was one of the strongest intramural units ever produced here. They beat Streeter 41-24, Lord 29-13, won from Gile on a forfeit, and they beat South Fayer 46-15, North Mass 52-22, Alpha Delta Phi 35-34 and Lowell House 30-14.

- The dormitory hockey season was completely dominated by the play of the defending champions, Wheeler, who not only put a veteran-studded aggregation on the ice, but whose stars, Chamberlain, Wanstall, and Chemesky, also formed the nucleus of the fraternity champs, Phi Sigma Kappa. This team came into the playoffs with a record of 6-3, 6-4 and 6-0 triumphs over Richardson, Fayer, and North Fayer— respectively.

- In the first playoffs, Topliff trounced a very weak Woodward team by the lop-sided score of 8-1, with Wallace, '37 finding the nets four times. Topliff certainly looked like champs in this game, but the next game found them looking like chumps when they ran into the aforementioned men from Wheeler, who encountered little difficulty in winning 4-0. While all this was going on, Streeter and Middle Mass were fighting it out for the redoubtable privilege of meeting Wheeler in the finals, and in a rough and tumble game, Middle Mass emerged with a 6-1 verdict.

- The final game started off meekly enough, but as time wore on and the Wheeler team failed to score, spectators began to realize that Camerer and Hopewood at defense and Perry in the goal were a tough bunch to beat. Finally, about 40 seconds before the end of the second period, Wanstall took a pass from Chamberlain to rifle the puck into the nets for the first score of the game. This seemed to provide the spark that Wheeler needed, for within two minutes after the third period started, the same combination of Chamberlain and Wanstall whipped the puck past a slightly bewildered Middle Mass goalie three times to give their team a comfortable margin for the rest of the game. A college championship game with the fraternity champions could not be arranged due to the fact that there was too much resemblance in the personnel of the two teams.

THE 1935 AEGIS

• For six months the editors and staff of the "Aegis" have been writing articles and compiling statistics about others. Now it is time to write about the "Aegis," for all the other copy is completed and ready for the printer. It is usual at this time to say that this year's edition is bigger and better than ever—at least better. And this statement is true for each successive board, for to them the book on which so much labor has been expended is the best yet.

• The 1935 board is no exception to this rule. While we have not expanded the book to pre-depression dimensions, certain definite improvements have been carried out. Foremost among them is the return of color to the book after several years of absence. The board feels that the "Aegis" should be more than a catalogue; it should be pleasing, attractive to the eye, at the same time giving a complete and accurate picture of the year's activities. In other ways the stiff formality of previous volumes has been relaxed and informal scenes have in many places replaced panels of faces interesting only to the owners. "The 1935 Aegis" is, we believe, a book in keeping with the best of Dartmouth traditions.

• In selecting the dedication and theme the Silver Anniversary Carnival was chosen after considerable discussion. Of all the events of the year, this seems to be outstanding, the premier collegiate social event of the winter season. It is a spot of color in the drabness of Hanover's winter, and perpetuating its memory in a colorful, interesting fashion has absorbed the best energies of the board. Most pleasant were the efforts to obtain pictures of some of the Carnival guests to liven up the otherwise tedious masculinity of the book.

• However, working on the "Aegis" has been far from pleasant at times. As usual we have had to push against an almost overwhelming load of campus indifference. Attempts to cut through it have won us the appellation of "the greatest sob-sister of all time." Nor is the financial aspect alluring; even now the financing of the book is a pressing problem, but at any rate the college and the class has its book, and the board has the satisfaction of having done its best at a thankless job.

• It is inevitable that in the process of compiling the huge quantities of statistics which a year-book contains that errors will creep in, in spite of the best efforts of the staff to check and double check. For all these we ask the indulgence of the student body. We believe that none will mar the value of the book as a record for the college year 1934-1935.

• It has been said that "the value of an annual is determined by the interest it holds for its readers and the accuracy and fullness with which it records the activities of the year." These standards are not easy to attain. Fullness and accuracy do not always arouse interest, and it is in the combination of these in proper proportion that the acceptability of the book depends. This the staff has done to the best of its ability, and in the approval of the college asks its only reward.

THE DARTMOUTH

- Now in its sixty-ninth year of publication, "The Dartmouth" is not only the oldest college newspaper in America, but at several recent press conferences was cited, by impartial committees, as the finest type of college newspaper. It is significant in this connection that the current rating of the National Intercollegiate Press Association gives first rank to "The Dartmouth."
- Perhaps the most outstanding characteristic of the past year has been the increasing tendency of "The Dartmouth" and other college dailies to concern themselves more and more with national and international events and problems. For the first time in the history of "The Dartmouth" a minority of last year's editorials dealt with subjects peculiar to Hanover and the Dartmouth campus. The national editorials symbolized on one hand an increasing interest of college men in the affairs of the day, and were received, on the other hand, with sympathetic regard by political, economic, and social leaders who were concerned with the attitude of the youth of the nation. President Roosevelt, himself a former editor of the "Harvard Crimson," said at a recent press conference that he "frequently read 'The Princetonian,' 'The Dartmouth,' and other college newspapers."
- Nor, on the other hand, have the "Dartmouth" editorials been wholly neglectful of the Hanover scene. There is no faculty censorship of any sort over "The Dartmouth." This causes the "Dartmouth" editorials to be respected, as those of an entirely free press, and likewise engenders the complete loyalty of the officers of the paper toward the College, from President Hopkins, himself a former editor of "The Dartmouth," down to the lowest freshman. The reading period, the honors system, and the recent liberalization of the liquor and women regulations were all proposals that first appeared in "The Dartmouth."
- Perhaps the most important function of "The Dartmouth," however, is that of a newspaper as such. With its large staff of reporters it covers the campus with unusual thoroughness, and as the only daily newspaper published within fifty miles is indispensable to its 2,000 readers. And, despite the fact that the headline writing, make-up, and proof reading—everything save the actual printing of the paper—is done by comparatively inexperienced undergraduates, the news is presented day after day in well-nigh professional fashion.
- Almost every day sees an interview with some outstanding personality—Norman Thomas, Gene Tunney, Ely Culbertson, Babe Ruth, or Eddy Cantor. And each column has its avid followers—the sports, vox-populi, humor, theater, political, and book columns, and that of the mysterious bard, Eleazar, whose identity is known to no one—not even the editors of "The Dartmouth."
- An enterprising business board, composed entirely of students, not only makes the paper pay for itself, but each year has shown a profit, which is divided up among the staff. The money returns, however, are comparatively small and insignificant beside the pleasure and experience of all sorts which the men working on the paper derive from it.

JACK-O-LANTERN

• Editors of "jack-o-lantern" come and go. As a rule they leave the office in February because that makes it an even year. This year they left office in February because they had received a letter from Corey Ford which said that "Jacko" had, for the past twelvemonth, far surpassed any college magazine. After that anything would have been an anti-climax, so the keys to the office were wistfully tendered to four juniors.

• "Jacko's" year opened in October with the "Freshman Issue," which met with unusual popularity, on the strength of which the number of subscriptions increased materially over last year. The next issue was devoted entirely to a parody of "Photoplay." Regular departments—"Metropolitan Letter," "Books," "Cinema," "Fashions," and "Radio"—which were instituted last year, were definitely continued as part of the standard makeup of the magazine. "Vox Clamantis" and "Jacko Thumbs His News" naturally stayed on too, having become a part of the book.

• With the "Thanksgiving Number" came the peak of a twenty-six year old rivalry between "Jacko" and "The Dartmouth." "Scooping" the daily funny sheet, "jack-o-lantern" published a sensational article which revealed the identity of Eleazer, the mysterious bard who had been contributing to the daily for over a year. More resentfully than playfully, "The Dartmouth" next morning cast doubt not only on the truth of the article and the motives of the editors, but upon their personal integrity. Spingarn, it solemnly averred, picked his nose, Sellmar "sat," while Lauterbach tried to look like a genius. Only Klingaman, who has always been in a class with Caesar's wife and the Lindbergh baby, was unscathed.

• An effective cover made from a reverse plate featured the "Christmas Number," which was followed by a "Carnival Number" consisting of "68 pages 68," the largest issue put out since the beginning of a certain depression. In addition to sundry ads, mute symbols of the Business Board's tireless vigor, there was a full page drawing by Abner Dean '31, a satire on the Committee on Social Life at Dartmouth, several articles purporting to advise the young lady planning to spend the week-end in Hanover, and a poem by Professor Robinson, "Planning the Issue," which marked a high spot in "jack-o-lantern" poetry.

• In December the 1935 Directorate pushed through to its organization a society of "jack-o-lantern" alumni, the purpose of which is "To strengthen and solidify 'Jacko' traditions among alumni after graduation . . . and to assist the undergraduate editors of 'jack-o-lantern.'" The society was formally launched as "The Jackobites" at a dinner in New York in January, which past and present "Jacko" men attended. In May the newly formed organization was strong enough to put out one issue of the "Jacko" on its own, the "Jackobite Number," which featured contributions from "Jacko" alumni of all classes, including Ted (Dr. Seuss) Geisel, president of the Jackobites.

• THE DARTMOUTH PICTORIAL is concluding its tenth year as a unique collegiate publication. Devoted to making a permanent photographic record of Dartmouth life in its varying aspects, THE PICTORIAL uses a minimum of textual matter. The Editorial Board always welcomes contributions from undergraduates, whether camera enthusiasts or merely the possessors of chance shots of more than passing interest. Any such photograph accepted for publication automatically goes to the credit of the contributor as a basis for his possible future election to the Board.

• Appearing three times during the College year, THE PICTORIAL is handled by a Business Board which conducts a regular competition for the various managerial positions. Both the Editorial and Business Boards offer several remunerative offices to the outstanding men of the two upper classes.

- It has been almost universally recognized that the Junto, accused of spasmodic gasping after the first year of its existence, has at last justified itself, and indicated that it refuses to die for awhile, at any rate. The membership of the organization was augmented by the admittance of freshmen and a faculty membership of about twenty-five men whose privileges are identical with those of the undergraduate members. The number of lectures was greatly increased, especially those which were closed to all save Junto members—a discrimination which permitted freer and livelier discussion. A sabbatical series of lectures was given by various members of the faculty on topics of current interest, economics, art, and literature.
- Outside lecturers who spoke before the Junto at closed as well as open meetings were George Seldes, who spoke on Newspaper Advertising; Genevieve Taggard, on Romanticism and the Young Writer; Craven Laycock, on The Business of Public Speaking; Johannes Steel, on the Impending World War; Michael Gold, on The Crisis in Modern Literature; Orrick Johns, on Political Prisoners and the Mooney Case; J. B. Neumann, on Modern Art and Architecture; Malcolm Cowley, on Literature and Politics; Bashka Paeff, on Sculpture; and Robert Frost, on Literature—including readings from his own poetry.
- In March, two juniors were elected to the Board of Governors. They were Raphael Silverman, director of the musical programs which were held in Bartlett Hall on Sunday afternoons, and Richard Treadway, who became treasurer of the organization.

- The Dartmouth Union was established, two years ago, for the purpose of helping students to find the place of religion in life and of fostering closer student-faculty relations. This second aspect of the Union's work was begun last fall by sending out to all upperclassmen, and later to freshmen, a questionnaire quizzing them on special interests and asking them to indicate the names of particular instructors whom they would like to meet informally. The large number of these questionnaires returned resulted in the formation of several discussion groups led by professors, usually in their own homes.
- Outside speakers brought to Hanover by the Union include the following: Francis C. M. Wei, Lynn Harold Hough, Douglas V. Steere, Edmund B. Chaffee, and C. Leslie Glenn.
- In the fall of 1934 freshman feeds were again a part of the Union's program. Their locale was changed from Mel Adams Cabin to the Dartmouth Outing Club House, where, after an attractive meal, members of the faculty and student leaders entertained the groups around the fire.
- Dartmouth Vespers, a revival of Sunday afternoon musical services emphasizing congregational singing and presenting well-known local and outside speakers, were inaugurated.
- Finally, the Dartmouth Union has supported the formation of the Student Christian Movement in New England by sending delegates to intercollegiate religious conferences at Northfield.

- Under the guidance of a new coach, Mr. John V. Neale, formerly of the University of Missouri, the Forensic Union has enjoyed this season a more extensive and more successful schedule of debating than it has had for a number of years. A first varsity squad of sixteen men participated in debates with some of the most prominent colleges in the country. The season started in November with the annual Smith debate, and continued with meetings with Yale, Brown, Holy Cross, Boston University, Boston College, Harvard, University of New Hampshire, Stanford, University of Puerto Rico, Bates, Michigan State, Union, Colgate, University of Pittsburgh, Columbia and Middlebury. The Harvard, New Hampshire, Union and Colgate debates were broadcast.
- In addition, a number of members of the Forensic Union, which also includes the second varsity and freshman teams, appeared in off-campus programs before such organizations as Chambers of Commerce and Rotary Clubs in nearby towns.
- On the basis of their showing in intercollegiate contests, six members of the varsity, C. H. Brown, '35, J. B. Gidney, '36, W. W. Lewis, '36, R. E. Button, '36 and B. S. Borofski, '36, were eligible, by the middle of February, for membership in Delta Sigma Rho, National Honorary Forensic Fraternity. It is expected that by the end of the year several more men will have become eligible.
- The freshman unit undertook a season more expanded than any freshman group of recent years. Opening the season at Andover, they met several local high schools, staged an exhibition debate at Littleton, and closed the season with debates at Tilton Academy and Harvard. At the time of this writing, debates with two women's colleges, Bennington and Smith, are in prospect.

• The Barbary Coast returned to school in the fall faced with the problem of adding five men to the band in order to fill the positions left vacant by graduation. Those returning were F. Lowell Haas, '35, leader, Malcolm W. Rowell, '36, Frank T. Wetstein, '36, and L. Hunt Sutherland, '36. Tryouts for the open positions were held, with the result that J. B. Conkling, '36, D. W. Andrus, '36, S. M. Vass, '36, F. W. Bury, '36, and W. H. Mann, '35 were selected. In February G. W. Zeluff, '38 was added to the personnel.

• This year's organization carried on the tradition set by former editions of the Barbary Coast in that it was engaged practically every week-end at such colleges at Mt. Holyoke, Wheaton, Bennington, Pine Manor, Connecticut College for Women, Bates, Wells, Colby Junior College and Dartmouth, and was also booked at such clubs as the Ridgewood Country Club, the Montclair Golf Club, and the Maplewood Women's Club, all of New Jersey. While accompanying the Thanksgiving trip of the Musical Clubs, the Coast played at the County Center of White Plains, N. Y., and at the Hartford Club of Hartford, Connecticut. Broadcasts from Boston were carried by WBZ and WNAC at different times during the year. In spite of the fact that the band traveled 7,000 miles in fulfilling the engagements named, and was away from Hanover frequently, the scholastic average of the members was 3.2.

• The popularity of the Coast this year was due in some measure to the large library consisting of over 200 numbers, half of which had been arranged by members of the orchestra. Another factor was the large instrumentation employed, the total valuation of instruments being approximately $1,600.

• The Coast is to spend the summer aboard the SS "Volendam" on its annual cruise to the Mediterranean and North Cape. The cruise, sailing from New York July 3 and returning August 26, will visit twelve countries, twenty-six cities, and will travel a total of more than 13,000 miles.

● In October 1930, the Deutscher Studenten Verein was founded to fulfill the need of a German club in Dartmouth. Ever since the beginning, it has continued to function, fostering interest in all things German. Under the capable leadership of Professor Stephan J. Schlossmacher, the faculty advisor, and W. S. Conklin, '31, the first president, the club embarked upon an ambitious program for its first semester. On December 14, 1930 the Verein, as it was then called, made its debut with the Christmas Celebration, which has since become a traditional affair. The club was honored by the presence of the German Consul General of Boston, Kurt von Tippelskirch, who manifested great interest in the two plays of the evening. The first was the "Apostelspiel" by Max Mell, and the second a sixteenth century Christmas play entitled "Weihnachtspiel."

● The succeeding years have been marked by the increasing activity and participation in campus and intercollegiate affairs by members of the club. In order to assume a more German atmosphere, a new constitution, similar to that of Mr. Schlossmacher's fraternity in Austria, was adopted on March 28, 1933. The new constitution provided for a selective process in taking in new members and created the office of Fuchsmajor, whose duty it was to instruct the Fuechse, or pledges, in club ritual and to prepare them for the Burschentum, or status of full membership. Under its provisions, the club name was changed to Studenten Verbindung "Germania."

● Germania's position of prestige and her country-wide reputation for excellence in dramatic field are due, in no small degree, not only to her faculty advisor's technical skill, but also to his untiring efforts and inspiring personality. Werner Neuse, president of the Interscholastic Federation of German Clubs, writes on page 19 of this January's "Monatshefte fuer Deutschen Unterricht":

● "Sehr regsam war wieder in der dramatischen Kunst die in diesen schon oeffter erwaehte Studentenverbindung "Germania" vom Dartmouth College. Neben einer weihnachtlichen Auffuehrung des "Apostelspiels" von Max Mell wurde zur 175 jaehrigen Wiederkehr von Schillers Geburtstag "Der Neffe als Onkel" gegeben. Wie wir hoeren, wird die Theatergruppe dieses Stueck den deutschen Vereinen in Cambridge anlaesslich eines besonderen deutschen Tages in Kuerze noch einmal vorfuehren. Die kuenstlerische Leitung hat wie bisher unser Vizepraesident, Herr Schlossmacher."

● The success of the "Apostelspiel" and the "Weihnachtspiel" led to further ventures into dramatics. On May 21, 1931, Wilhelm Meyer-Foerster's "Alt Heidelberg" was produced with W. S. Conklin, '31 in the leading role. Two one-act plays, Sudermann's "Fritzchen" and Alexander Elz's "Er ist nicht eifersuechtig" were given on the twenty-first of November of the same year. The hundredth anniversary of Johann Wolfgang von Goethe's death was commemorated by the presentation in its entirety of the famous poet's "Clavigo" on April 10, 1932. Mrs. Kurt von Tippelskirch, wife of the German Consul General of Boston, creditably played a leading role. The other leads were assumed by Mrs. C. Dudley, Dieter Schoeller, an exchange student from Germany, and A. L. Washburn, '35. Professor Kuehnemann of the University of Breslau was made an honorary member of Germania at a reception given in his honor.

● The Weihnachtsfeier on December 13, 1932 was observed by the performance of "Der Stern von Bethlehem," a play by Fritz Grebenstein. In commemoration of Gerhart Hauptmann's seventieth birthday, Germania produced the famous playwright's "Hanneles Himmelfahrt" with G. J. Mundt, '33, in one of the leading roles. The play was given a second time on May 20, 1933 before representatives of the German clubs of Smith, Boston University, and Middlebury. Shortly afterwards, the club was honored by receiving a letter from Gerhart Hauptmann himself.

16 Juni 1933

Herrn Stephan J. Schlossmacher,
Dartmouth College,
Hanover, New Hampshire.

Sehr verehrter Herr Schlossmacher!

Durch die Guete des Herrn Konsuls von Tippelskirch erfuhr ich von einer schoenen Auffuehrung eines Stueckes von mir, "Hanneles Himmelfahrt," die Sie veranstaltet haben. Ich habe zu bedauern, fern von dem Feste gewesen zu sein: darf ich Ihnen wenigstens, Ihnen und der verehrlichen Studentenverfndung Germania vom Dartmouth College in Hanover, meine Freude und meinen allerwaermsten Dank ausdruecken. Es ist mir eine grosse Ehre, mit Ihnen gemeinsam an unserem herrlichen Deutschtum, am Geiste der Kunst und der Menschlichkeit mitwirken zu koennen.

Ihr ganz ergebener
(signed) Gerhart Hauptmann

● On invitation of Middlebury College and its German Club, Germania presented Felix Timmermann's "Spiel von den heiligen drei Koenigen" for the first time in America during the evening of December 10, 1933; E. J. Drechsel, '35, P. C. Hessler, '36, and D. E. Sanderson, '36 played the title roles. A week later the play was reproduced in connection with Germania's annual Christmas Celebration.

● One of the most memorable and pleasurable activities which Germania has ever undertaken was the reception aboard the German cruiser "Karlsruhe" and the subsequent visit of the German cadets to Hanover on the occasion of the Fahnenweihe. After President D. E. Sanderson, '36 had extended his welcome to the cadets and to the guests from Smith, Bennington, and Dickinson Colleges, Mr. Paul C. Hessler, Sr., an Ehrenmitglied of Germania, made the dedication speech and presented the club with the beautiful Germania flag which he had had made in Munich. Following the banquet, dancing was enjoyed until midnight when everyone present repaired to the Nugget to see the German film, "Wiener Blut."

● This year Germania was grieved to learn that Max Montor, noted German actor, who had interpreted portions of well-known plays here in the fall of 1933, had died. The present college year opened early with a meeting on September 27, when President D. E. Sanderson, '36 outlined a program for the semester. The German Table, which the club has sponsored during the greater part of its existence, was reestablished this year with fourteen members headed by the faculty advisor. In October, Herr Schlossmacher delivered an interesting lecture on the Passion Play of Oberammergau, which he had seen during the summer. Colored slides and music from the play added greatly to the atmosphere of the lecture. Later in the month President Sanderson also gave an illustrated lecture on the Deutsche Museum of Munich.

● On Saturday, November 17, 1934, the one hundred and seventy-fifth anniversary of the poet Schiller's birth, Germania produced his delightful comedy, "Der Neffe als Onkel." Mrs. C. B. Dudley, Mrs. R. Robinson, and Miss Margaret Smith capably handled the feminine roles, while A. L. Washburn, '35, D. E. Sanderson, '36, C. J. Schuck, '37, T. B. Allen, '36, and C. B. Dollak, '35 acted with all the stiff, mirth-provoking composure common to old Europe. The city of Stuttgart sent a fine Schiller exhibit and the following cablegram was received:

Germania, Dartmouth College:

Als Oberbueergemeister der Schillerstadt Stuttgart und Vorsitzender des Deutschen Ausland Institutes sende ich Ihnen sowie den Mitgliedern der Studentenverbindung Germania und allen Schillerfreunden als Zeichen enger Verbundenheit zu ihrer Auffuehrung herzliche Gruesse.

Dr. Stroelin—Mayor.

Apostelspiel

● Germania celebrated its fifth Weihnachtsfeier in the traditional manner on December eighteenth in the Little Theater. After some appropriate poetry recited by F. H. Vogt, '37, Harold Pabst, '38, and T. B. Allen, '36, not forgetting to mention Herr Schlossmacher's poem, "Heiliger Abend auf der rauhen Alp," by N. M. Black, '35 and a flute solo by T. H. Harbaugh, '35, the Sprechchor, composed of German conversation class students, impressively intoned Wildenbruch's "Weihnacht." The main attraction of the evening was the play, Max Mell's "Apostelspiel." Walter Beinhart, '36, as the grandfather, spoke the prologue and the final word of Christmas cheer. Mrs. Norman W. Beck ably played the part of the country girl whose simplicity had such a wonderful effect on the two strangers, Henry Lullman, '37 and Conrad Schuck, '37. Mr. Schlossmacher directed this as well as all other productions of Germania, with L. C. Zuber, '36 as his technical assistant. At the reception held in the clubroom around the Christmas tree after the play, honorary membership was conferred upon Professors Royal C. Nemiah and Stephan J. Schlossmacher.

● In furtherance of one of the club's purposes, "the promotion of the knowledge of German culture and German life," Germania has brought several German sound-films to Hanover with the cooperation of the manager of the Nugget Theatre. In the five years of its existence, eight films, "Zwei Herzen im Dreivierteltakt," "Zwei Menschen," "Maedchen in Uniform," "M," "Die Soehne der Weissen Berge," "Wiener Blut," "Kadetten," and "Das Blaue Licht" have been shown; two more motion pictures are scheduled for this spring.

● On March seventh, Hans Merx, famous German baritone and interpreter of Deutsche Lieder, gave a recital before an open meeting in the Little Theater. All who attended were astonished by the richness of Herr Merx's voice and keenness in illustrating the characteristics of many different songs. Selections from modern German songs were included in his repertoire as well as selections from Wagner, Schubert, Brahms, Schumann, Tschaikovsky, and other classical composers.

● Two lectures are to be given this spring. Professor Walter C. Behrendt will speak on the subject, "German Architecture," which will be illustrated by slides. "Four Years in Germany during the War" is the topic of a lecture to be delivered by Professor Leon Verriest of the French Department. Max Polster, '37 will present a paper entitled "What is left of Goethe?". Plans are under way for the production of several puppet plays later this year. The Germania Orchestra, which played on North German Lloyd liners during the summer of 1933, has been practicing faithfully all winter and looks forward to another pleasant summer afloat.

● The first Festkneipe of the year was held on December 6 at the Villa Clara Inn. Professors Nemiah and Foley, guests of honor, proved to be the life of the party. A Kneipe has been described: "All members wore their Caps and Stripes, Fuechse rode chairs, beer was consumed, and speeches were made in the traditional German manner." The Kneipe is the occasion for the important ceremony of Burschung, or the advancement of those Fuechse who have proved themselves worthy of full membership. The second Kneipe was held on Thursday evening, February 28, 1935. Burschen and Fuechse alike are anticipating the next Kneipe with pleasure. It is to be held late in May.

● On January 16, the election of officers for the second semester took place. Edwin J. Drechsel, '35, was elected president. The other officers chosen were Andrew P. Schmidt, '36 as vice-president, Ludwig C. Zuber, '36 as Fuchsmajor, Frederick H. Vogt, '37 as secretary, and Augie K. Paeschke, '37 as treasurer.

● The past five years have been a period of growth for Germania; members have been graduated, and many new ones have come to fill their places; a new constitution has been adopted and a simple uniform chosen; but the ideals of the original founders remain:

● "The promotion of the knowledge of German culture and German life, the creation of social fellowship among the members, the study and use of the German language, and the promotion of better relations between the United States and Germany."

• "My interest in your organization has never waned," writes Mr. Edward Tuck in response to a letter of Christmas greeting sent this year by the Cercle.

• Our program this year has been unusually rich. Our dynamic god-father, Prof. Francois Denoeu, has never failed to add color and movement to our meetings, whether by his talks on writers, music, French gaiety, or by his French songs, or by readings from his latest novel. Philippe Soupault spoke to us on James Joyce. A pleasing costume skit, "Gros Chagrins," by Courteline, was presented by Mesdames Guthrie and Bagley. One time the Cercle was graciously invited to the home of Prof. Washburn, and there, with members of the Circolo Italiano as guests of honor, the Balcony scene from "Cyrano de Bergerac" was given by Madame Guthrie and Mm. Marks, Mascarello, and Prof. Cook. We were charmed, later in the season, by a delightful causerie on the sadly misunderstood George Sand, given by Prof. Bagley. Talks by members were notably done by Mm. Pruden, Lamorey, and Williams.

• The climax to a very full season was the joint soiree of the Romance Language clubs. The Cercle began the evening with an uproarious farce by Courteline, "Les Boulingrin," in which M. Lamorey was thoroughly trounced by the gentle hands of Madame Guthrie and Prof. Cook. The whole evening was a gala one, with a continental, cabaret effect, and leavened with a bevy of attractive demoiselles.

• As a fitting liqueur for the usual French cookery, the Cercle in May presented its inimitable stock company in Labiche's "La Cagnotte," a real success and very much the product of Prof. Verriest's directing.

• The Centro Espanol began its campaign this year with a reorganization of the Directiva, Robert Richter becoming president and Lester Garvin treasurer. The club met on alternate Tuesdays and the membership swelled to thirty men. The programs varied considerably this year. Richter, a pipe and tobacco enthusiast, gave a talk on the history of smoking. Father Sliney, of the local diocese, talked to the club on the more significant aspects of the Eucharistic Congress held at Buenos Aires. When the Centro learned that the new Circolo Italiano had been organized, it sponsored a joint meeting of the two Romance Language Clubs.

• A Christmas party was prepared by the Directiva. Spanish games were played and prizes were awarded to winners. T. B. Allen, L. Garvin, and R. Richter put on a humorous skit satirizing the status of women in America relative to that in Spain. A fire blazed cheerfully in the fireplace during the evening and the room was appropriately decorated with Christmas colors. Cider and doughnuts climaxed an evening of good fun.

• Since Mr. J. M. Arce, the faculty adviser to the Centro, was away on sabbatical leave for the second semester, Mr. J. B. Folger assumed the duties of adviser.

• In the spring, the Centro, along with the Cercle Francais and the Circolo Italiano, staged its annual "velada." Each club presented a play and following the Thespian activities, the guests were provided with music, dancing and refreshments.

• The Centro had its annual banquet in the late spring at the Villa Clara Inn. All in all, the club was especially fortunate this year in having such a representative body—some of its members coming from Cuba, Peru, Dominican Republic and even from Spain. Allen, Garvin, and Richter were granted the privilege of wearing the club pin.

• The newly added Language Club, organized at the beginning of the present college year, was well received by those interested in Italian life and culture. A great deal of credit falls due to Professors Wood and Pianca and to those students whose efforts made possible this organization. Along with the two other Romance Language Clubs, the Circolo Italiano took part in the Soiree which was held March 9, 1935. During the year at the bi-monthly meetings, several members of the faculty spoke to the club concerning Italy. Also several musical evenings were held and met with the approval of the members. Usually after these meetings, informal discussions were held, while those present partook of refreshments. By these means, those interested in Italy are brought together to form a friendlier feeling amongst themselves.

• In the past, the small body of students composing the Dartmouth Corinthian Yacht Club has been chiefly interested in intercollegiate yachting. Due to the rather poor local facilities for yachting of any sort, all of the club's activities have necessarily taken place in Boston and New York regions, and then only a few students have been able to participate. This is a severe handicap under which the club has labored ever since its founding; it has been a difficult task to foster college interest in the organization when its activities are so far removed, and its membership is so limited. Nevertheless, the Dartmouth Corinthian Yacht Club has been active, and has done a fine job of representing the College in intercollegiate yachting.

• In April, 1934, Dartmouth sailed a series of dinghy races with Harvard on Dorchester Bay. Dartmouth won the series, 155-95. On May 10, Dartmouth sailed against Tabor Academy on Buzzards Bay in Vineyard Sound Interclubs, and again the Dartmouth crew won.

• The Intercollegiate Regatta was held on June 13, 14, and 15, at the Beverly Yacht Club on Buzzards Bay. The boats were Herreshoff fifteens. The Dartmouth crew, defending the intercollegiate cup, which was won the year before by Jack Odell, consisted of Jack Odell, Bob Collins, Gordon Torrey, Walter Lindemann, Charles Harrison, and Dick Gordon, with Frank Curtis as a substitute. A series of six races was sailed over various courses, and the weather was ideal. During the third race a squall blew up, which caused slight damage to two of the boats. Dartmouth lost the trophy to Harvard; the results of the regatta found the teams in the following order: Harvard, Princeton, Dartmouth, Yale, Cornell, and Williams.

• This spring the Dartmouth Corinthian Yacht Club hopes to have two dinghies of its own down on Mascoma. This will make competitive choice for the crews possible, and will also provide an enjoyable pastime for the members.

THE PLAYERS, 1934-1935

William A. Leonard, II

- "There are some literary critics," writes Christopher Morley, "who remind me of a gong at a grade crossing clanging loudly and vainly as the trains roar by." It is possible that any discussion of a play, or a season of plays, may fall into this category. But, at any rate, let us plunge into a year, and a subject. Let us attempt to see what that year, that subject, bring forth.
- The college drama, unless its end be always kept in mind, may all too easily degenerate into a mild and far from beneficial form of undergraduate expression. The drama at Dartmouth, for all its ups and downs, has always kept its head above water and its end well in view. That end, in brief, is to encourage actors, production crews, and audiences to a finer understanding of the theatre and of the dramatic arts. The season of 1934-35 has been noteworthy for upholding this tradition—for experimenting, for reviving, and for carrying on in a healthy spirit. Faced with the loss of two outstanding undergraduate stars, Al Hewitt and George Cogswell, the Players and their Director, Warner Bentley, were faced with the problem of replacement and of careful play choosing.
- The first Players' show of the year comes at Fall House Parties, the dividing line between Hanover cold and Hanover warm. To entertain College guests and College undergraduates the Players chose "Yellow Jack," an historical drama by Sydney Howard as their initial offering. Mr. Howard and Paul de Kruif, popularizer of medicine, collaborated on the script of this production. "Yellow Jack" is a play about doctors and soldiers. It is the saga of a great crusade which took place at the beginning of the century against the ravages of yellow fever and the mosquito which carried it. It was produced on Broadway a trifle more than a year ago with paradoxical success. Critics, ordinarily the first to pick flaws, saw in it a potential Pulitzer Prize winner. The theatre-going public, however, with its customary unpredictability, shied away from it like frightened lambs. Consequently, "Yellow Jack," within a month or two, found itself existent in script alone.
- It was not an easy play to produce at Dartmouth. It combined the technical difficulties of "Amaco" and "Merry-Go-Round," and Warner Bentley, director of the Players, had his hands full to round 25 odd scenes into a well fitting unit. The show presented unparalleled lighting difficulties. Hesty Hirst, Lou Welt, Cliff Porter and Paul Siskind, in charge of lights, had no less than 125 complicated switches to throw during the course of each performance. Gardner Cushman, stage manager, had four stages to look out for, and Henry Williams was confronted with technical problems which at times seemed almost insurmountable.
- Mosquitoes and medicine are not subjects which hold any spontaneous appeal to a house party audience, and consequently, "Yellow Jack," not overly publicized, proved a disappointment, if the size of the audience is the criterion.

- It dealt in main with the activities of the Reed Yellow Fever Commission, sent to Cuba to find out the cause of the most dreaded infection of the western world. The four members of the Commission, and the four soldiers, upon whom "tests" were made, are the major characters of the show. Two seniors, Harry Libbey and Harry Ackerman, carried the heavy acting burden of the show. Libbey was cast as the blunt, plunging Dr. Carroll, who nearly dies of yellow fever. It is a part literally made for Harry, and he continued to show the steady ability which has made him a Players standby for three years.

- Dramatically, Jesse Lazear, dynamic, hot headed and forceful, is the best part in the show. This was Ackerman's part. Lazear it is who dies of yellow fever . . . and it is Lazear on whom the hose of sympathy is most strongly played. It is a part which requires a good deal of "heavy" acting, and Harry was "heavy" enough to move the most callous theatre-goer. In the tremendously dramatic scene in which he finally catches yellow fever from an unknown cause, two members of the audience were so overcome by the sheer realism of the scene that they were forced to leave.

- Nominally perhaps, Walter Reed is the leading part in "Yellow Jack" but the play is so constructed that Reed is not present during the most interesting, important scenes. The part was played quietly and efficiently by Bill Mowry, '38, who, after a year of the Hanover stage, seems the best find of the last two years. The final member of the Commission, Aristedes Agramonte, was played by this reviewer, who cultivated a thick Spanish drawl for the occasion. The four soldiers, Brinkerhoff, O'Hara, McClelland and Busch, were played by Ted Whitmore, '36, Tom Towers, '36, Fred Mayne, '38, and Dave Scherman, '36, respectively, and in most instances these difficult parts were aptly portrayed. Gene Kern, '36 stepped from his "Amaco" triumph to an effective characterization of Dr. Finlay, aged M.D., who was studying yellow fever when the American doctors were in cribs, and it was all the cast could do to recognize Gene, with his shaking hand and stooped walk.

- We must not deem "Yellow Jack" an unqualified success, for there are a variety of things inherent in the play itself which deaden its appeal to even the most enthusiastic audience. A few of the scenes, particularly at the beginning of the play are too long and technical; instead of explaining, they detract. We might also point to an insufficient welding of the lives of the army doctors and the four soldiers, who are drawn together solely by the thread of the mosquito. But, from nearly all angles, "Yellow Jack" was a worthwhile contribution to the drama in Hanover, primarily because it is a worthwhile play, but also because it was done with care, feeling, and artistry by a group who felt its significance.

- Before we go on in this article we must not forget the Experimental Theatre, and the annual prize play contest. Last spring, three plays were produced, out of more than a score handed in for the contest. Three more were presented this fall, and immediately after their presentation the winner was announced. To Maurice Rapf, '35, who transferred to Dartmouth from Stanford two years ago, went the unusual honor of being awarded both first and second prizes. His "Delinquents," a careful, unusually alive study of a reformatory, was chosen winner, and "The Kid Brother," a comedy of boyish manners, enthusiastically received by the Little Theatre audience, was given the second prize.

- "The Dartmouth" in its Carnival Tabloid issue calls Mr. Rapf Dartmouth's only playwright-actor-director, and his fluent command of stage technique and dialogue as utilized in these two plays is strong evidence that at least as a playwright he is of unusual promise. Third prize was awarded to Jerry Spingarn's "Go Down, Moses," while Harry Ackerman won fourth with "Little Street in the Land of the Gods."

- In 1769 Dr. Oliver Goldsmith upset London play-goers with another of his revolutionary comedies called "The Good Natured Man." In 1934, "The Good Natured Man" appeared in Hanover as the Players' second offering of the season on December 13 and 14.

- There is nothing, was nothing shocking in the 1934 version of the play. But Goldsmith still holds a high position in the field of the drama. The play is naturally funny, well written, and added to that, it is of course ridiculous in many respects today, which makes it even funnier. There is much the same kick in a 17th century courtship and 17th century effusiveness as there is in the first motion pictures reshown today.

- Capitalizing on this, and an all-star cast which included Blake Johnson, Bill Mowry, Dave Pierce, Maurice Rapf, Betty McWhood, and Mrs. Alice Cox, Warner Bentley and Henry Williams, who shared the direction, presented the show as a pre-holiday offering, and two full houses chuckled as audiences seldom chuckle.

- In "The Good Natured Man" the Players wisely abandoned the idea of men playing female parts in the yearly revivals. The success of "Tom Tiler" and "The Wandering Scholar" given last year, was due largely, we are frank to confess, to out-and-out ribaldry, rather than artistry. It would be a mistake to assume that all revivals here should be done with men cast as boys. As it was, "The Good Natured Man" did have some trouble jumping the gap between centuries. At times the individual, uninterrupted speeches seemed endless, and at other times the situations appeared stale and uninteresting. But Goldsmith's incomparable knowledge of the type character was more than enough to carry the show forward, and to twentieth century success.

- So much happens in the play that there is little hope that a reviewer could tell it all. Anyway, little happens of any sociological, biological, or any other logical importance, but there are several proposals, a purloined letter, and scene upon scene based on misunderstanding.

- As is often the case, the title role is not the best dramatic part in the play. Mr. Honeywood, the good natured man, was played by Bill Mowry, '38, and though it was performed with polish and skill, it remains definitely a "stooge" role.

"The Pirates of Penzance"

• To Blake Johnson, '36 goes the "stole the show" honor, and with the masterfully drawn character of Old Croaker to work with, it is not surprising. Fighting a cold through most of the rehearsals, Blake was worried as to his ability to carry out his role, but his gestures alone would have been sufficient. Old Croaker seems to us indisputably one of the most perfectly drawn characters in the drama. He is a counterpart of Dicken's Micawber, and as amusing and effective. Dave Pierce, cast as the slippery article of the play, matched Johnson's role laugh for laugh, most of the time. Dave is particularly in his element in a period play. His 17th century mannerisms were unrivalled. At times he was so graceful in his bowings that there seemed a chance that he might take flight.

• Mrs. Margery Cavanaugh and Betty McWhood handled the two ingenue roles with all the daintiness and allure their parts called for. Other members of the cast included Mrs. Alice Cox, Mrs. Swoboda, Sam Stein, '35, John Stein, '38, and Bruce Lemmon, '38.

• With the coming of December, the main activities of the Players shifted temporarily to Bartlett Hall as Prof. Bentley, with the musical aid of Prof. Maurice F. Longhurst, began work on the Carnival show. The success of "Iolanthe" last year made the choice of another Gilbert and Sullivan operetta logical and desirable. The question remained as to which one. The "Mikado" and "Pinafore" were ruled out because they had been produced but a few years before. In order, therefore, to facilitate worthy selection, Henry Williams brought forth his D'Oyly Carte recordings, and the directorate for a stretch of three days listened to the complete versions of "The Gondoliers," "Yeomen of the Guard," and "The Pirates of Penzance," successively.

• Though Prof. Longhurst, Mr. Williams and a few of the more ardent campus Savoyards had set their hearts on the less well-known "Yeomen of the Guard," Mr. Bentley and the members of the directorate, their eyes on the box office, selected "The Pirates," agreeing that the "Yeomen" could be a possible choice in 1936.

• A musical production in Hanover always offers enormous difficulties. First of all because of the inadequacies of Webster Hall and secondly because of the dearth of feminine talent. A great deal of the success of "Iolanthe" had been due to the excellence of Alan Hewitt as the Lord Chancellor and of Laura Carter as the Fairy Queen. This year, Hewitt had been graduated and Mrs. Carter was away. To fill the roles corresponding to those just mentioned in "Iolanthe," Profs. Bentley and Longhurst selected Maurice Rapf for the part of the Major-General and Norma Stone as Ruth, the piratical maid-of-all-work.

• The major problem lay in finding a presentable girls' chorus to fill the parts as the Major-General's daughters. Last year, the chorus had been recruited entirely from Colby, but the difficulty of commuting for every rehearsal made the repetition of this plan inadvisable. The alternative was to find talent from local sources, and to do this, the directors gave auditions to all the girls in the Hanover, Lebanon, and White River high schools who thought they could sing at all. The result was an extremely willing and agreeable chorus of twenty young ladies who, though weak in vocal volume, added a great deal to the show.

- The return of Marion Folger to Hanover provided the show with an excellent Mabel. Her voice, trained and cultured, was able to handle the difficult cadenzas of Sullivan's score with comparative ease and grace. Helen Cutler as Edith was likewise a considerable asset.

- Two members of the glee club, Joe Parachini, '35 and Ross Woodbridge, '36, were given the rather difficult assignments of becoming actors over night. Both men had excellent voices which made up for the inadequacies of their acting, however. Parachini, who played Frederic, the young apprentice to the Pirates and the suitor of Mabel, was at his best in his opening number with the girls' chorus. He appears before them in his pirate's costume, which consists, at least below the waist, of a short skirt and a pair of tights, but modest young man that he is, he warns them in the recitative "Stop Ladies Pray," of his "alarming costume." Ross played Samuel, the Pirate Chief's assistant.

- The bulk of the comedy was carried by three experienced Hanover actors, Profs. James Hamilton and Donald Bartlett, and Maurice Rapf, as the Sergeant of Police, Pirate King, and Major-General Stanley respectively. Both members of the faculty have been in nearly all of the Handel Society productions of past years, while Maurice has been in a majority of the Players' performances while at Dartmouth. The experience of these men was at all times evident on the stage.

- Prof. Hamilton brought down the house with his leading of the policeman's chorus in the second act. After the third rendition of this number, the policemen listened to the pleas of the Major-General, who had implored them to go, and left, while the audience demanded still another encore.

- As the Pirate King, his countenance completely covered by long black moustaches and a wig which didn't know where to stop, Prof. Bartlett was a ferocious specimen. He used his powerful voice to the utmost and put all the life and feeling possible into his "For I am a Pirate King" number as he leaped about the stage.

- Maurice Rapf had dreamed so long of playing the part of the Major-General that one could easily see the delight he took in it, but with it all, he kept himself in perfect restraint and sang the fast patter, "I am the Very Model of a Modern Major-General," with all the modesty that is possible under the circumstances. Maurice liked "The Pirates" so much that he stood in the wings, during rehearsals, singing everybody's songs. The result was a bad case of laryngitis which kept him in Dick's House until a half-an-hour before the show began.

- Not too much praise can be given the men's chorus, which under the direction of Prof. Longhurst gave the show the lusty "hail fellow" feeling which it required.

- Mr. Williams and his technical staff produced colorful costumes, an authentic set, and a general production, carefully directed by Mr. Bentley, which left very little to be desired. We only wonder how they do it with all the interruptions from exams and other details as handicaps.

- The bill for the remainder of the year is replete with a variety of entertainment. Late in April Gene Kern and Harry Libbey will bring the immortal "Quirt and Flagg" to life in the Robinson Hall Little Theatre in the Maxwell Anderson-Lawrence Stallings masterpiece "What Price Glory." Whether or not "What Price Glory" will be looked on as propaganda for war or against it remains to be seen, but, as it was recently judged the third best play in the history of Broadway, leaves little doubt that it will be entertainment of the highest order. Carrying on where Louis Wolheim and Victor McLaughlin, William Boyd and Edmund Lowe left off, Harry and Gene have been going through their war manoeuvres nightly at rehearsals in Z Webster.

- As this is being written fifteen fraternities are preparing to offer fifteen plays in the annual Interfraternity Play Contest. Stolen glimpses of midnight rehearsals indicate ambition and we hope quality, which outdoes former years.

- For Green Key the Players offer a wild and more than wooley melodrama of the Civil War era. The title, "Under the Gaslight,"—a drama of life and love in these times—does full justice to the play, but more than gaslights, the piece is rife with police courts, "bad men," and heroes tied to railroad tracks. In what vein a spring-saturated Dartmouth will receive this super-dramer we can only guess. The casting is as yet incomplete.

- In 1931, the Players presented "Five Hundred Gallons," a revival of the student musical comedy, "Oh Doctor!," penned in 1918 by Gene Markey, and Warner Janssen. After a lapse of four years, another student-written show will be presented, this one titled, "Banned in Boston." Budd Schulberg, '36, Maurice Rapf, '36, and Paul Siskind, '35 are co-authors of this musical satire on our modern rackets. Advance notices indicate that most of Hanover will take part, in one form or another, for, beside a cast of nearly fifty and a large production crew, mob scenes for use in moving picture interludes will provide the dramatic debut for tens, hundreds, thousands of undergraduates.

- The musical comedy will be student-managed, and student-directed. The "Banned in Boston" office in Robinson is the daily scene of feverish work . . . girls . . . publicity . . . stage sets . . . budgets . . . all share equally in the preparations. Assisting the authors in production are seniors Sid Diamond and Dick Hirschland. "Banned in Boston" will be staged a week or two after the annual spring experimental plays.

- As another year wends its way into the past . . . or to come closer home, as the Players see another year wend, etc., there are a few regrets, much to be thankful for. The regrets are mainly concerned with graduation. Harry Ackerman, Harry Libbey, Paul Siskind, Maurice Rapf, Gardner Cushman, Frank Cornwell, Dave Pierce, and the many other seniors who have worked on production or as actors during the last four years will be missed more than words here or anywhere can tell.

- But there are years ahead as well as behind us.

THE D. O. C. YEAR

John F. Hardham

- The organized activities of the Outing Club got under way in September with much enthusiasm on the part of Cabin and Trail. Chairman Rocky Rockwell's words, that the Club was the "most dynamic organization on the Dartmouth Campus," provided the impetus for a quick start in the fall program.
- Scarcely a week of classes had passed before the '38 gang was introduced to Outing Club lore at "D. O. C. Night." The following Sunday 130 freshmen hiked or drove to various cabins of the chain for feeds served by Cabin and Trailers, and logging bees. Repeatedly during the fall season the official trips' notices were oversubscribed almost as soon as they were posted. Saturday after Saturday the Club's rooms in Robinson were a veritable riot of excited trip-goers checking up on equipment and making last minute preparations.
- One of the more promising aspects of the fall trip schedule, aside from its great popularity with the Class of '38, was the wide range of country visited by the different trips. The Adirondacks of New York, Mount Mansfield in Vermont, and Mounts Chocorua and Osceola in eastern New Hampshire were some of the mountains visited this year ordinarily beyond the scope of Outing Club trips.
- One of the highlights of the fall program was Bradford Washburn's illustrated lecture "The Attack on Mount Crillon," which he gave in October. His fascinating account of his third effort to ascend Mt. Crillon, in Alaska, which was successful, and his exhilarating motion pictures accompanying the talk were most enthusiastically received by a large audience of town and college folk.
- But if anything determines the success of a D. O. C. year, it is Carnival. And the Silver Anniversary Carnival was in many respects the most successful affair of its kind ever held. The highlights of the week-end have been ably described by Chairman Dick Hube elsewhere in this volume, and need not be mentioned here. Nevertheless, Carnival annually represents the greatest single, organized project of the Outing Club. It is "the" affair of the winter from the standpoint of the College socially and the Club functionally. In working for Carnival, the Freshman Cabin and Trail heelers make their most indelible impression and the upperclass members offer their most admirable individual services.
- No sooner was Carnival over than did the many exciting ski races of the season begin to claim the spotlight. At combined jumping and cross-country tournaments at Lake Placid, New York, and Norfolk, Conn., Dartmouth's best jumpers and runners, Captain Sel Hannah, Bem Woods, Warren Chivers, and Dick Durrance, held their own against the best in the East. Meanwhile the down-mountain skiers won the individual and team honors at Mount Greylock, in the Massachusetts Downhill Championships. At the Intercollegiate Ski Union Championships, held at St. Sauveur, Quebec, Dartmouth's crack skiers won the meet in glorious style, once more proving in the most convincing manner Dartmouth's intercollegiate supremacy. The Dartmouth team won first place in every event except the cross-country, in which its highest place was a close second. Of the nineteen medals awarded at the close of the meet, fifteen went to the Dartmouth team.

- While the Dartmouth A Ski Team has represented the College in the major skiing contests, the B and even C teams have been making most admirable showings in some of the minor, though hardly less exciting, competitions, intercollegiate as well as open. With the growth and popularity of skiing as an intercollegiate sport, the number of scheduled contests and meets in which Dartmouth is invited to be represented, has increased beyond the point where one team can represent the College in every meet. This winter season has witnessed the Williams Carnival Meet, the Middlebury Carnival Meet, the dual meets with Cornell and the Lebanon Outing Club, as well as the open third class downhill races. Moreover, there is every reason to expect that more Carnival and dual meets will be scheduled in the next few winters. Hence the need has arisen for well-rounded teams which can represent Dartmouth in the less important contests and also serve as a testing ground for the varsity team. In response to this need, Coach Otto Schniebs has developed the B and C ski teams. The B team has made a particularly fine showing so far this season. In the three open third class downhill competitions which have been held this year, namely the races of the Woodstock Ski Club, the Newport Ski Club and the Winnepesaukee Ski Club, the B squad has won the team prize in every case. Early in the season the B's narrowly lost to the Lebanon Outing Club in a dual meet. At the Williams Carnival, the B squad placed second to the University of New Hampshire's first string team, while at the Middlebury Carnival, the B team won the meet by a most convincing margin. On the other hand, the C team, in its only encounter of the season, barely lost a closely contested dual meet with Cornell University's varsity. But the most pleasing development of the B and C ski squads is not actual victories won, so much as the fact that the pleasure of competing in intercollegiate and open skiing contests has been afforded to a greater number of men.

- Even as this article goes to the press, we are at the height of the down-mountain racing season, so popular among undergraduate skiers as well as skiers representing clubs all over the New England region. Inasmuch as the selection of the ski team to represent the United States in the 1936 Olympics in Germany will rest markedly upon individual achievements of the current season, the competition in the classic downhill races about to be held in March is expected to be especially keen. With such fine skiers as Washburn, Woods, Hunter, Chivers and Durrance competing for Dartmouth, we may look forward to further triumphs for the Ski team this season. In these downhill skiers, the Club and the College as a whole have great confidence and are anxious to see them represent the College in the National Downhill Championships to be held on Mount Rainier, Washington, in April. In order to raise sufficient funds to pay transportation expenses for these men, the Outing Club has planned a Novelty Ski Night for March fourteenth, to which a small admission will be charged.

- The interest of the undergraduates in skiing as both an exercise and a recreation is reflected in the large registration in the "rec" skiing classes, the popularity of the intramural derbies, informal downhill and slalom races, and in the tremendous sales of skiing equipment by local merchants. In regard to the increased undergraduate interest in the "rec" skiing classes and in informal ski races, no little credit is due Charles M. Dudley for his enthusiastic coaching of the "rec" squads. The registration this year reached a new high of three hundred and fifty, which may be very favorably compared with the previous record of one hundred and seventy. One of the new features of Hanover's skiing season was the small ski-tow which the club erected on one of the hills on the golf course.

- The unprecedented size of the Senior Mount Washington Trip this year, which has become an extended skiing trip held annually over Town Election Day week-end, is also evidence of the increasing popularity of skiing here at College. The Senior Trip was led by Link Washburn, ably assisted by the junior leader, Bill Niss. The party this year numbered thirty-four—so large that the trek to the summit from Pinkham Notch had to be undertaken in two separate divisions.

- An important phase of the Outing Club's activity is carried on during the summer. The Summit House on Moosilauke, operated last summer under the direction of Hutmaster Rocky Rockwell, with Bill Curtis and Dick Sawyer as his assistants, had a very successful season financially. Last summer marked the fifteenth season of the Outing Club's operation of this House, and saw twenty-three hundred visitors, including representatives from twenty-one summer camps, received by the Crew. Many other undergraduates, interested in Outing Club work, spent part of the summer farther down the slopes of Moosilauke at the Ravine Camp of the Dartmouth Alumni Outing Club. Under the direction of Otto Schniebs and Hutmaster Fordy Sayre, they cut out new ski trails and practice slopes, as well as a road into the Ravine Camp from a state road now being built by the C. C. C. The Summer Trail Crew, composed of Dick Hube and Mo Cartwright, spent the major part of the summer putting the cabin chain in excellent shape for the coming year, doing an especially fine job of building a new porch on Franconia Cabin.

- Shortly before Thanksgiving, the Club was grieved to hear of the death of its greatest material benefactor—Reverend John E. Johnson, '66. A man of genuinely altruistic principles, he had given generously and unselfishly to the Outing Club since its founding. In appreciation of his generosity, the Club had named him honorary president for many years. Upon his death, it became the duty of Cabin and Trail to name his successor. To this office, Fred Harris, '11 was elected, in gratefulness of his pioneer work in founding the Club in 1909.

• The opening of college found many members on the river for an afternoon's paddle, or for an informal feed at one of the club's three island cabins. Members' feeds at the clubhouse every Thursday saw them swapping tales of canoeing and camping from Tennessee to Canada, and from Mexico to the Yukon. Six freshman feeds were held to acquaint them with the club and its cabins, and some fifteen men were admitted after passing their tests.

• A trip to Canada to bring in three new canoes, a singles race to Chase Cabin, and an unexpected white water trip when heavy rains filled the White River brought the active canoeing season to a close. A special dinner in honor of the founders of the club found five of the seven signers of the original articles present, as well as many old-time members. Dick Goddard, first president of the Club, and now Faculty Advisor, was presented with a gift in appreciation of his continued support of the club. Regular member feeds continued through the winter, with occasional highlights such as the annual oyster feed, a talk by Otto Schniebs on canoeing in Germany, and one by John Minnich, '28, who is building the new Ledyard bridge.

• In the spring, two trips on Lakes George and Champlain gave a chance to get in shape for the hardest trip of all, the annual Ledyard Cruise to the Sea. The two White River trips, rapidly becoming the most popular of the year, filled two other weekends. After the spring membership feeds, the annual Regatta, open to the whole college, wound up the year with competition in singles, doubles, four man races, tilting, and overboard races for medals and the Co-op Cup.

• The Dartmouth Boot and Saddle opened its seventh year on the campus with a greatly increased membership. Since its origin it has steadily grown until now it numbers over thirty-five members; during this last semester it has already brought in nine new members. This increase has been brought about mainly by the introduction of riding as a recreational activity, and by the more complete program offered by the Boot and Saddle. So far this year, two weekend rides have been held with other colleges, Colby Junior College and Bennington. Several Hare and Hound chases for the members have been run during the winter months, in addition to numerous afternoon and overnight trips for prospective members.

• This year the Boot and Saddle was responsible for the innovation of the first Intercollegiate Ski-joring competition in this country. Four colleges and universities were entered: Harvard, Cornell, Norwich, and Dartmouth. The race itself was run over a 500-yard course laid out on the golf course and included over six turns. Two Dartmouth freshmen, C. MacLeod and Y. Fujiyama won, with Cornell and Norwich placing second and third respectively.

● Bait and Bullet is a small informal club, organized in 1920 by a group of Outing Club members who were interested in the prospects of hunting and fishing around Hanover. The object of the club is to give those members of the college who are interested in these sports a chance to get together and take trips to some of the nearby covers and streams. A great deal of information as to the most productive spots for fish and game has been accumulated during the years of the club's existence, and is passed down each season to the new members. The club owns two cabins in nearby favorable locations.

● The countryside around Hanover offers splendid sport for the upland game hunters. The season starts in October with an abundant supply of both local and flight woodcock in the alder and birch thickets up the Connecticut River valley. The woodcock is a gamey little bird and a prize well worth going after. New Hampshire boasts a two month open season on the king upland game bird of them all, the ruffed grouse, locally known as "partridge." Found in the thickest of cover and possessed of terrific speed, these birds offer an almost invulnerable target to the best of shots. But there are plenty of them, so we do not go unrewarded. There is also a flight of ducks, snipe and a few geese down the river.

● For those who prefer hunting to shooting, there are many deer in the hills around Hanover. A year doesn't go by that at least one member doesn't get a shot at a deer, but the number actually brought into camp is low. In the spring when the game seasons are closed, the hunters turn their eyes toward conservation and conduct trips after crows and other vermin injurious to wild life.

● There is bass fishing in the fall and pickerel and lake trout fishing through the ice in the winter, but the best fishing is in April, May, and June. There are many big and little streams with trout of all sizes; and when the ice leaves the lakes, the club's canoe is put into use by members trying their luck at land-locked salmon.

• Advertisers, to be held, must be used; these advertisers, in patronizing the "Aegis," have expressed their interest in Dartmouth and in the Class of 1935. We hope our readers will cooperate with us in supporting them. Included also in this section will be found the Commencement program, several Dartmouth poems, and a directory of the College.

- The publication of a yearbook is a task not to be undertaken lightly. Much labor and interest is necessary to produce the best possible result, but a great deal of this time and drudgery may be saved by the cooperation of those persons and organizations from whom the editors must secure their original copy. Therefore we, the editors of the "1935 Aegis" wish to acknowledge publicly our appreciation and thanks to the following:

- The Outing Club, the Athletic Council, particularly Miss Crosby, the Registrar's office, the "1924 Aegis," the athletic managers and representatives of the other campus organizations, who have all contributed to the editorial content of this volume.

- "The Dartmouth," for the publicity and news stories that it has accorded us.

- "The Aegis" committee, who helped us in our subscription drive when this proved necessary.

- Miss Pauline Webster and the other Carnival guests who gave us permission to use their portraits to brighten up this Carnival "Aegis."

- Ralph W. Brown, for several photographs of college activities.

- The White Studio, in particular Messrs. Leonard and Johnson, for their interest and assistance in providing us with photographs to meet the exacting requirements of our engravers.

- Baker, Jones, Hausauer, Inc., of Buffalo for the actual construction of the book, and their representatives, Mr. Merle Schneckenburger, Mr. Karl Hausauer, Mr. Frank Powers, and Mr. Sterling J. Hiles.

- Last but not least our editorial and business heelers for their help throughout the year, for their work which was at times dull and uninteresting, and for their loyalty at a more or less thankless task.

GULF NO-NOX ETHYL
AVIATION GRADE
GASOLINE

FOR YOUR AUTOMOBILE

Quicker STARTING • Higher ANTI-KNOCK
with 4 Additional Points of Superiority

AT NO INCREASE IN COST!

WHAT IS AVIATION GRADE?

Gulf No-Nox Ethyl Aviation Grade is the finest motor fuel available, regardless of price. Its high octane rating has been further increased. Its distillation characteristics conform to those of the U. S. Government specifications for aviation gasoline.

*WHAT ARE THE 6 POINTS OF SUPERIORITY?

1. Quicker Starting
2. Quicker Warming Up
3. Better Acceleration
4. Less Crankcase Dilution
5. More Available Power
6. Increased Anti-Knock Properties

DARTMOUTH

Bull slinger of the world,
Horse-collar, drinker of hooch,
Teeming with life and virility,
College of wet proms!

They tell me you are brutal, and
I answer, "Yes, it is so"; I have Seen the sophomores paddle
And go free to paddle again.
And they tell me you are a spendthrift
And I say to them, "Yes, it is true"; I have Seen the men forking out their cash at Campion's.
And they tell me you are wicked, and I answer, "Yes,
It is so"; Have they not thrown peanuts wantonly
At the Nugget?

And having thus replied, I say to them
"Show me another college so virile and filled with he-men,
Strong as a flivver quivering for action,
Beautiful with the beauty of a B. & M. steam engine,
Panting, snorting, hiccoughing,
Proud to be dumbbells, man-eaters, bootleggers of the world."

— AND ITS INHABITANTS

Ignorant young freshman coming from the Nugget,
Stealing towards the Commons with a hungry map,
Laden down with long pants,
Peanuts, pop-corn,
Magazines, study-books, and a pea-green cap.

Dirty football tackle from the sodden ball-field
Rushing to the shower room and spitting blood,
In a dirty, gray-green sweater,
Dirty neck, no shave,
Sweaty face, sweaty hands, and thick brown mud.

Elegant Joe College coming from the barber's
Strolling 'cross the campus to the Alpha Phi,
Immaculate in gray trou,
Cigarette, class cane,
Bandoline, vaseline, and bright knit tie.

THE WIGWAM

1924, 1935, AND — 1946???

I read the "Smut Section" each Sunday;
For scandal I have a keen thirst.

I read the careers
Of models with tears,
And I learned about women from Hearst.

These stories, I say, have intrigued me,
Their attraction was felt from the first.
So each naughty tale
I read without fail,
And I learned about women from Hearst.

My knowledge grew broader and broader,
I thought that my cranium would burst.
I remember one story
I thought rather hoary,
And I learned about women from Hearst.

The pictures, I'll add, were the berries,
Though the artists I heartily cursed
For it seemed rather rude
To paint girls in the nude,
But I learned about women from Hearst.

If you don't like my line or my ditty
And against me a grudge you have nursed,
Please recall that I say
(As you have just read)
That I learned about women from Hearst.

There is something ethereal, something inexpressibly inexpressible in the following gem from the modern school by the now famous, internationally known poet, Ibid Anon. It has the subtlety, the poignancy, the charm which only the modern has been able to master to its fullest extent.

"A I N ' T N A T U R E —"

The sun comes in
On the buttocks of the morning,
Like a princess riding
In a Ford sedan.

The sun goes out
In a jet of purple flame,
Like a turkey's egg
Fried—soft.

CARNIVAL INCARNATE

- Long months ago this book was but an idea in the minds of a selected few, whose self-imposed task was the creation of a tribute to the Silver Anniversary Winter Carnival.
- Now Carnival is at once a Dartmouth tradition, a state of mind, and the year's most significant week-end. To develop this complex theme with all richness and beauty, yet economically, seemed a superhuman, at times an impossible achievement. Achievement it is . . . successful beyond dreams: today the 1935 AEGIS makes its appearance.
- From the snowy front cover to the last leaf of the book, every page breathes the spirit of Carnival. Other tributes of other years are widely surpassed . . . this volume is Carnival incarnate. And as a record of the Class of 1935, all Dartmouth men will proudly acknowledge this AEGIS as the finest of a long line of fine yearbooks.
- Proudest of all are those few men who have been most intimately concerned with the production of the book: Walter B. Holmes and his editorial associates . . . Allen W. Tacy and his business staff. They have literally built the book, page by page, from beginning to end.
- Of our own part in producing the AEGIS, we will say but little . . . the book itself speaks far more eloquently than any words of ours. We wish only to record our deep satisfaction and pride in working with the staff. Both they and we are secure in the knowledge that, because of our sole responsibility for engraving, printing and binding, no finer yearbook could be produced.
- We are proud of the 1935 AEGIS.

Since 1891 —

The HANOVER INN
has welcomed Dartmouth men Freshmen Year, served them as upperclassmen, and wished them well upon their Commencement. Since 1891 graduating classes have returned almost to a man and made the Hanover Inn their headquarters, their home in Hanover. Men of 1935 — Farewell, our hospitality awaits your commands as returning alumni.
